MEMORIAL TO HEROES OF WAR IN CHARLES

New Harvard Bridge and Monumental Building on Island Are Proposed

A monumental building, dedicated to truth and liberty, situated on an artificial island in the Charles River basin, half-way across Harvard Bridge, is the proposed memorial to Boston's sons who served in the war, according to the plans of Mayor Peters' special committee, filed today.

It is proposed to replace the present Harvard bridge with one capable of taking heavier traffic, and midway to create an artificial island on which the memorial will stand. The total cost is estimated at $2,000,000, of which $1,000,000 would be raised by popular subscription.

The building will be idealistic, rather than utilitarian, expressing the ideals for which America entered the war, according to the ideas of the committee. Says the report:

"The proposed location of the island is on Massachusetts avenue, at Harvard Bridge, a great thoroughfare connecting Boston and Cambridge, leading from Dorchester Heights at one end to Lexington and Concord at the other.

"A memorial placed there would have not only an ideal setting, on an island protected forever from encroachment by the basin and the Metropolitan park system, but would be on a line of constant traffic on a great highway. The memorial structure would crown and dominate the island and be reflected in the waters of the river."

The committee selected to determine the form and site of the memorial consists of fifty-one members, although the report was drawn up by a sub-committee, of which Charles A. Coolidge, an architect and member of the park and recreation commission, is chairman.

The other members are Judge Robert Grant, Thomas Allen, chairman of the art commission; Charles D. Maginnis, member of the art commission; Arthur A. Shurtleff, C. Howard Walker, Cyrus Dallin, Morris Gray, Joseph DeCamp, Mrs. Richard Saltonstall and Mrs. George Shepley.

13,000 Tons of Coal Arrive in Boston

Thirteen thousand tons of coal and more than ten million pounds of sugar were among the cargoes arriving in port here today.

The coal was on three steamers from Norfolk. There were 7,550 tons for the New Haven Railroad, 3,000 for the Boston Elevated and the same amount for the New England Fuel and Transportation Company.

The steamer Lake Butler brought 5,000,000 pounds of sugar from Banes, Cuba, for the Revere Sugar Refining Company. The Lake Cayuga from Matanzas, Cuba, had five and one-half million pounds for the American Sugar Refining Company.

Additional coal for Boston was expected to arrive during the day on boats that have been delayed.

GIVE UP GERMAN FLEET SALE

Shipping Board Will Put Liners in Passenger Service, Is Report at Capital

Washington, Feb. 28.—Restrained from selling the entire fleet of thirty former German ships by the terms of the court injunction secured by William Randolph Hearst, the Shipping Board has practically decided to place the ships in operation as passenger vessels, it became evident today.

Representative Richard Olney, of Massachusetts, has been advised by the board that the George Washington, one of the principal vessels of the fleet, will shortly proceed to the Boston navy yard for repairs. The amount of $1,000,000, Mr. Olney was informed, will be expended in placing the George Washington in first-class condition.

In the absence of Chairman John Barton Payne, who is ill, the announcement that immediate repairs would be made on the George Washington is construed to mean that the Shipping Board has finally abandoned its efforts to sell the fleet, and would not attempt to appeal from the provisions of the injunction preventing their sale.

This will insure, it is believed, the ultimate placing of the whole fleet of thirty vessels in commission as a passenger unit.

JAPS DISCREDIT TALK OF TROUBLE

London, Feb. 28.—Members of the Jaanese delegation in London for the meeting of the Council of Premiers said today they had no confirmation of a report that "serious development have occurred in Japan." The only admitted possibility was that the Japanese Cabinet may have collapsed.

Mobs Storm Strand for Suits at $14

London, Feb. 28.—One hundred thousand tailor-made, highest grade suits, offered to the public at $14 a suit, blocked traffic along the Strand, one of London's busiest thoroughfares, in the midst of an almost continuous rainstorm.

The sale was the beginning of a tremendous onslaught on clothing profiteers by Harry Mallaby-Deeley, millionaire member fo Parliament, which is thrilling all England.

From an early hour in the morning, long before the sale opened, thousands of well dressed men and women, boys and girls, stormed the doors of the public benefactor's "place of business."

The police reserves had to be called to clear the street, but the crowd soon came back. Thousands were held up for hours at a time, causing great business losses. The general cost of a tailored suit in Britain is $75.

Explaining his purpose to Universal Service, Mr. Mallaby-Deeley said:

"I am simply trying to help protect the public against the profiteer, the greatest factor in the present unrest which is at the point of shaking the constitution."

Wollaston Passengers Crowd on Tracks; More Snow for Boston Predicted

More snow is predicted for Boston. There will be a light snowfall late tonight and tomorrow, according to local forecast, although the mercury will continue to rise. At least an extra inch is expected.

Desperate in their efforts to get service from the New Haven railroad, residents of Wollaston have adopted a plan which, although filled with danger, for the last two days has been effective.

Train after train had whirled by the Wollaston station Friday morning without stopping, when about 200 angry commuters determined that they would force the next one to stop.

As it came into sight they crowded onto the tracks. The engineer brought the train to a halt to avoid running into them, and the commuters clambered aboard.

The scheme was repeated today with success.

The train crews appeared incensed by the action, but the commuters said it was the only way they had been able to secure transportation.

It was pointed out by members of the crew that they were violating

JERSEY'S 'WET' LAW FAILS

Is a Distinct Violation of Federal Statute, Says Revenue Bureau

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 28.—The law passed by the Legislature of New Jersey permitting 3½ per cent. beer will not be recognized by the Federal government.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue today issued a statement declaring that violators of the Federal prohibition law permitting but one-half of one per cent. of alcohol will be prosecuted in New Jersey.

The statement issued by the bureau says:

"The Bureau of Internal Revenue is charged with the enforcement of the national prohibition act, which definitely prohibits the manufacture and sale for beverage purposes of all liquors containing one-half per cent. or more of alcoholic by volume.

"This being the case, the manufacture and sale of 3½ per cent. beer, which is permitted by the bill passed by the New Jersey Legislature, is in direct violation of the Federal statute. All persons, therefore, who are found guilty of this violation of the Federal statute will be proceeded against to the limit of the law."

The Answer to Ulster

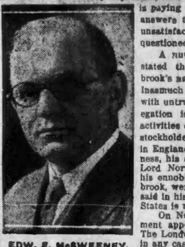
Delegation's Replies to Questions Regarding Credentials and Source of Funds Vague and Unsatisfactory

By EDWARD F. McSWEENEY.

Member of the Advisory Committee of the Irish Victory Fund and National officer Friends of Irish Freedom.

CHAPTER V.

Charge No. 13. That religious organizations in America would crush Sinn Fein as a cart wheel crushes a toad.



EDW. F. McSWEENEY.

ANSWER—Numerous inquiries have been made of the Ulster delegation as to what they represent; who gave them their credentials and who is paying the expense of their journey. Their answers to all these questions are vague and unsatisfactory. They refuse to debate or be questioned.

A number of the Ulster delegation have stated that they never heard Lord Beaverbrook's name until they landed in this country. Inasmuch as a clergyman cannot be charged with untruth—it can only be said that this delegation is singularly uninformed as to the activities of our former neighbor, the Canadian stockholder, Max Aiken, whose meteoric career in England, his entry into the newspaper business, his appointment as Sir Max Aiken after Lord Northcliffe's break with Lloyd George, his ennoblement by the King as Lord Beaverbrook, were the talk of all Europe. It may be said in his favor that his hatred for the United States is not in the least disguised.

On November 8, 1919, the following statement appeared in Lord Beaverbrook's paper, The London Express: "The Methodist Church in any case regards a politico-religious crusade preached by Ireland with small favor, but it might take no practical action on the other side unless its interest was suddenly aroused. THEN IT WOULD ACT, AND IT WOULD CRUSH THE AMERICAN SINN FEIN AS A CART WHEEL CRUSHES A TOAD. The allies have so far made no real effort to start this slumbering giant unless perhaps Sir Edward Carson's much criticised July speech in Belfast was intended as the first move in this campaign. Five in Hospital, Coal Barge Sunk When Tug Cuts Towline of Another Ship

Vineyard Haven, Feb. 28.—Five seamen are in the Marine Hospital here, six others are thanking their lucky stars that they are alive, and a coal barge with 2,800 tons of coal is at the bottom of the Sound today as the result of one of the oddest marine disasters on the North Atlantic Coast.

The tug Lenope, towing three coal-laden barges from the South, cut the tow rope between the tug Bariton and the hull of the United States Shipping Board steamship Dover. One of the Lenope's barges swung against the Dover and went down, the crew taking to the small boats.

Six men cast adrift on the rudderless hull of the Dover drifted in the teeth of a strong wind over Middle Round Shoal and came ashore one and one-half miles from the West hop landing on Martha's Vineyard.

FINAL RUSH ON TAX RETURNS

Long Lines Crowd Office of the State Income Commissioner

Long lines of Massachusetts residents formed outside the tax commissioners headquarters at No. 40 Court street, in an eleventh hour desire to make tax returns.

The already overworked employes of the office were submerged by a flood of returns, which have been piling up at such a rate that Wednesday's mail had not been opened late Friday.

Returns this year are much larger than ever, owing to the number of wage increases granted last year. To date about 125,000 have been filed and at least 125,000 more are expected. Approximately 219,000 returns were made in 1919.

Up to February 20 the tax commissioner had received 1920 taxes in advance to the amount of $328,597. At the same time last year advance payments amounted to $125,518. In 1907 income tax collections were $12,470,101; in 1918 they were $14,398,771, and for 1919 they amounted to $15,467,940. Early estimates placed collections this year at approximately $3,000,000 more than the 1918 figures.

FUGITIVE IN POLICE HANDS

Warren, Accused of Larceny From Clients, Gives Himself Up

Joseph Franklin Warren, Boston attorney who fled leaving behind him a trail of debts involving from $100,000 to $200,000, today surrendered to Chief Inspector John R. McGarr.

Warren went to police headquarters in a taxicab. He was met by his attorney, William H. Garland, who had been awaiting his coming for several hours.

He was booked charged with larceny from Captain James R. Gerrish and also from Mrs. Ethel W. Ehrman.

It is expected that additional charges will be placed against him before actual prosecution takes place.

Plans were made by Attorney Garland for the release of Warren in bail bonds. Just how much will be required, or who will offer it, is not known at present. Warren would not talk about himself or his difficulties when he arrived.

Instead he went with his attorney direct to the office of Chief McGarr. There he was closeted for a considerabe period, after which he was taken into the office of Inspector Gleavey and booked.

Warren's law firm, Warren & Palmer, has been petitioned into bankruptcy and a receiver appointed to take charge of its affairs. There are numerous creditors, and while not all have entered criminal complaints, it is expected that some additional will be forthcoming.

Chief Inspector McGarr is authority for the statement.

Warren, in his real estate transactions, made use of a bogus or forged stamp of the office of the registrar of probate. Furthermore, the chief alleges that the signature of William T. A. Fitzgerald, was also forged to a rubber stamp and used by Warren.

Plans to Destroy Boston and Middlesex County Citizens Are Frustrated

Evidence concerning a new bomb plot, in which prominent Boston and Middlesex County men were named for destruction, has been unearthed by District Attorneys Tufts and Pelletier of Middlesex and Suffolk counties.

During the investigating into these new plots, Viero Mariani, alias Mario Viagenro, was arrested by detectives in a raid made on an East Side, New York, lodging house. Mariani was grilled today in New York by District Attorney Tufts, District Attorney Swann of New York, and representatives of the Department of Justice.

MORE SNOW MENACES TRAIN TRAFFIC, ALREADY PARALYZED

orders in stopping to take on passengers when not scheduled.

They have warned the commuters that some engineer may refuse to stop and serious accidents may result if persons on the track are unable to get out of the train's path.

Trains scheduled to stop at Wollaston have not done so during the morning rush hours in the latest snowstorm, commuters said. The station is on the main line of the South Shore Division.

Several residents of Wollaston have taken up the movement for a public indignation meeting, which was started in East Milton.

They proposed today that a similar one be held in Wollaston. The East Milton meeting will be held Friday night, March 5.

"DIG OUT NEW ENGLAND."

Thousands of industrial workers today were "digging out" New England in answer, to the appeal of President John R. Macomber of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to prevent the closing of factories and to aid the road officials in resuming normal train service.

The workers, loaned by the manufacturers, started their shoveling at important train junctions and road yards where the congestion is the worst, later devoting their efforts to bring relief to stalled trains and snow plows imbedded by the drifting snow while trying to rescue a crippled train.

TRAIN SCHEDULES PARALYZED.

Transportation conditions today are worse than they have been at any time this Winter, say road officials, and many branches are without any service, while others are getting but few regular trains.

Trains from northern New England are from one to six hours late and many failed to leave their termini so clogged had the rails become along their routes.

Many manufacturing plants have already been forced to close because of the combined handicap of fuel shortage and inability to obtain raw materials. All efforts to move freight trains with material for New England plants has proved fruitless.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has closed its freight houses in Boston and employes were utilized in removing the snow and ice from the tracks of the system. Only perishable commodities, foods, coal and live stock are now being accepted for transportation.

NEW HAVEN WORKERS BUSY

This plan, which the New Haven also was forced to put into practice yesterday, was followed again today and the freight workers gave their efforts over to clearing the tracks. This road, in fact, has practically abandoned all efforts to move freight under the present conditions.

Unless the transportation conditions improve at once thousands will find themselves without work Monday morning as plants will be unable to open. It was the seriousness of the general situation which prompted the representatives of the three railroads plying from Boston to confer with the Chamber of Commerce, with the resulting appeal to the manufacturers to permit their workers to join a general "clean up" army.

NAME SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The chamber appointed a special committee which today directed the efforts of the army of volunteers who have been assigned to points on the railroad systems most seriously affected. Picks, shovels and other implements have been provided by the manufacturers and in many instances by the railroad.

The committee appointed by President Macomber consisted of Philip R. Allen of Bird & Son, chairman; Robert M. Burnett of Deerfoot Farms, Southboro; Llewellyn Howland of Waldo Brothers, Boston; Charles H. Jones of the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Company; Michael J. Hawkins of East Walpole, and Frank J. Ludwig of Charles M. Cox Company, Boston.

The three principal New England railroads were represented as follows: The New Haven by C. L. Bardo, general manager; C. N. Woodward, general superintendent, and R. G. Fitzmaurice, assistant general superintendent; the Boston & Maine y J. P. Quilty, superintendent of the rminal division, and the Boston & any by J. L. Truden, general rintendent.

by rail is at a standstill, with no prospect of relief until the rails are cleared.

Hundreds of requests for coal received by the New England subcommittee at the South Station have been filed, but there is no supply available to provide even the public utilities, aside from the manufacturers.

Bird & Son, Inc., of East Walpole, was the first big concern to respond to the Boston Chamber of Commerce The company sent 450 snow shovelers by special train to Attleboro and Providence. Chamber of Commerce officials estimated that 5,000 "loaned" mill workers would be at work digging the New England railroads out of the drifts by night.

Trains Are Stalled in Snow in Berkshires

Lenox, Feb. 28.—The New York and Pittsfeild express and a local train from Canaan, Ct., to Pittsfeild were snowbound for the night just north of the Lenox station

Snow drifted as high as the top of the engines, and the station agent had to round up a hundred men to "dig out."

From 9:50 p. m. until 6 a. m. today the trains were stalled. On advice of the conductor, most of the express passengers left the train at Lee to find lodgings for the night.

The passengers on the local remained on board, and hot coffee, rolls and Frankfurters were supplied them. Both trains pulled into Pittsfield about 6:30 a. m. today with five engines.

The thermometer during the night ranged between 14 and 18 degrees below zero. All street car service in this section has been suspended for a week and only the heaviest freight engines have been used on the railroads.

Second Coldest Feb. 28 on Record

This was the second coldest February 28 in the history of the Weather Bureau, with a temperature of 3 degrees at 7 a. m. On the same date in 1907 the mercury stood at 2 degrees. Although the mercury rose today and warmer weather is predicted for tomorrow, light snow may be expected late tonight and Sunday, according to local forecast, with light to moderate south to west winds.

Northfield, Vt., was the coldest spot in the United States today at 16 degrees below zero. It was 12 below at Greenville, Me., and Concord, N. H. Nantucket was the warmest spot in New England, at 14 degrees. The warmest in the country was Galveston, Tex., at 62.

Worcester Suburban Service Suspended

Worcester, Feb. 28.—The Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company, abandoning all attempts to fight the elements, has suspended indefinitely service on all suburban lines and laid off 650 employes.

General Manager Henry C. Page said nothing would be done to resume operations on the lines running out of Worcester, until the weather improves.

This action, which does not affect the city lines, was taken after a conference between President C. V. Wood of Springfield and General Manager Page.

Below Zero In Many Suburbs

Wintry gales have driven the mercury below the zero mark in the suburbs of Boston. The official thermometer at Concord Centre registered 14 below, making the twentieth time it has been below zero this winter.

Train service between Bedford and North Billerica, a distance of seven miles, has been suspended and service from Bedford to Concord Reformatory has been curtailed. The only service on the Lexington branch of the Boston & Maine is between Bedford and Boston.

Wilson to Establish New Fuel Control Agency

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 28.—President Wilson today moved to avert a nationwide coal shortage. At his direction Director Hines, Secretary Tumulty and Attorney-General Palmer conferred to determine how the President's powers under the Lever act shall be administered after the railroad administration ceases to function.

The President, it was said, will issue a new order designating the person or agency which shall continue to administer the fuel control.

In a joint memorial demanding that action be taken that will guarantee fuel restrictions after March 1, Governors of New England States declared that industries and utilities in that part of the country faced a critical situation.

Lincoln medal, awarded to 100 school children who excelled in Lincoln Essay Contest.

While an admiring crowd of relatives and friends looked on, the 101 New England school children who excelled in the Boston American's Lincoln essay contest were awarded their prizes today by Governor Coolidge in the historic Hall of Flags at the State House.

Prior to the presentation the children were photographed with the Governor on the main steps of the building. It was a gala event for the boys and girls, many of whom came long distances to receive their award directly from the hands of the Governor.

COMPLIMENTS AMERICAN.

The Governor was delighted with the task. He is very fond of children. Just before giving the awards he made a brief address, which was attentively listened to by the children and their friends. In this address the Governor complimented the Boston American for conducting an educational contest of the character of the Lincoln essay contest and he praised the children for their efforts, calling attention to the fact that they had excelled in a field of 7,000 contestants.

The most interesting feature of the presentation was the gift of a check for $500 to Miss Dorothy Cushing O'Keefe of Beacon Hill avenue, Lynn, a senior in Lynn Classical High School. This check represented the first prize.

Miss O'Keefe is a tall, willowy brunette, and was the centre of all eyes as the Governor delivered the cash prize which will mean so much to her. She is to use the prize money to help pay for a college course. After receiving the treasured check from Governor Coolidge she thanked him and the Boston American in a few well chosen words.

TO USE PRIZE FOR EDUCATION.

Then the Governor began the distribution of the solid silver medals to the other 100 children. The Governor called the names of those to whom they had been awarded by the Boston high school teachers who acted as judges. As each boy or girl's name was called he or she came forward and was handed a medal by Mr. Coolidge. In addition each child received a small picture of the Governor from his secretary, Henry Long, as a keepsake of the occasion.

District Attorney Tufts today said that investigators were still on the hunt for the perpetrators of those outrages. The evidence thus far discovered was not productive of the desired results.

Several weeks ago, arrests were made in both Suffolk and Middlesex counties of persons suspected of being radicals. There were prosecutions in both counties and some convictions were obtained.

GOT THREATS BY MAIL.

At about the same time, prominent residents of both counties received letters threatening them with bodily harm.

Investigation into these letters convinced the prosecutors that a new bomb outrage was planned.

The trail led into New York and during the past four weeks District Attorneys Pelletier and Tufts, in addition to detectives, have spent considerable time in New York running these clews down.

Mariani's detention is the first step toward solution of the cases. It is expected that within the next forty-eight hours some sensational developments will result. As yet District Attorney Tufts is not prepared to make a more detailed statement.

HOME RULE BILL TO BE IGNORED

Sinn Feiners Expect Nationalists to Join in Opposition

Dublin, Feb. 28.—The Irish republicans will ignore the new home rule bill, prominent Sinn Feiners told the Universal Service correspondent.

"We intend to work for the complete independence of Ireland, a task for which we have the mandate of the Irish people was the statement of one of the most prominent republican leaders.

Ulster, on the other hand, will begin a campaign next week for the acceptance of the new bill.

The Nationalists are expected to join the Sinn Feiners in opposing it.

Here in Dublin the consensus among well informed men is that the bill will be forced through the House of Commons, but that it will never be enforced because it is generally regarded as artificial and unreal.

Cardinal Logue's Statement Seen as Blow to Sinn Fein

London, Feb. 28.—Cardinal Logue's exclusive statement to Universal Service, published in the United States Thursday was displayed as the leading feature in the London newspapers, mostly under such headings as "Blow for the Sinn Feiners; Cardinal Logue Joins Dominionists."

Most of the papers here seize on the fact that the primate for all Ireland opposed the complete separation of Ireland from the British Empire, but they overlooked the fact that he unequivocally opposes the new Home Rule measure.

SEE SHOCK TO SINN FEIN.

The Times, which reprints the Cardinal's statement in full, describes it as a remarkable utterance bound to cause a profound sensation among the Sinn Fein leaders who are "engaged in the United States on starting revolutionary movements not only in Ireland but in India and Egypt as well."

The Times believes Cardinal Logue's espousal of dominion home rule is like to "intensify De Valera's irritation created by Sir Horace Plunkett's enthusiastic meeting in New York."

The Daily Mail says the prelate's statement has come as a shock to Sinn Fein leaders.

GAZETTE SOUNDS WARNING.

The Westminster Gazette, commenting on the cardinal's message to Universal Service, says:

"Such a pronouncement by the head of the church in Ireland is clearly of great importance. England has to decide whether she will make an offer broad and generous enough to command the support of a large proportion of the Irish people or confine herself to the niggardly scheme which no Irishman regards as satisfactory. If we do the latter, we play into the Sinn Fein hands."

IRISHMEN HONOR EMMET'S MEMORY

Irishmen and their descendants the world over will on Thursday commemorate the one hundred and forty-second anniversary of the birth of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot. At meetings of the various Irish societies in and about Boston today well-known orators discussed Emmet's career and compared it with that of Patrick Pearse and others who participated in the rebellion in Dublin on Easter Sunday, 1916.

Woman Poker Player Won Only $5

Mrs. Ida Scharoff of No. 17, Spring street, West End, was found not guilty of winning more than $5 from Morris Weiner, a roomer, by Judge Duff in the Municipal Court. Weiner told the court that when a poker game was played in the home of Mrs. Scharoff that she always won. A witness appearing for Weiner told the judge that he had seen Weiner lose $18 in a poker game, and that when he was broke that Mrs. Scharoff would lend him money so that he could continue to play, and that he always lost what he borrowed.

The arraignment of Mrs. Scharoff was one of the first cases, if not the first, in the Municipal Court; where a woman was charged with winning more than $5 in a poker game. Mrs. Scharoff admitted playing, but denied winning more than $5 at any one time.

FORCE DR. BOOS TO APOLOGIZE

Retracts Remarks He Made About Expert Witness at Burke Trial

Skowhegan, Me., Feb. 28—As the result of alleged derogatory remarks he made regarding the ability of A. H. Hamilton, a handwriting expert for the defence in the trial of John A. Burke, accused of the murder of Nelson W. Bartley, Dr. William F. Boos, of Boston, noted toxicologist was forced to make a written apology or face a suit for $25,000 for slander. He apologized.

Mrs. Nelson W. Bartley, widow of the murdered man, takes the stand today to rebut the testimony of Mrs. Lepha Moore, sister-in-law of Bartley, who said that he searched for a cartridge the night of the murder.

Mrs. Flossie Burke, wife of the accused, was the principal witness of the morning session. Her testimony was brief and she was not cross-examined.

Mrs. Burke identified the two notes and one receipt which had been made out in her husband's favor and which the State claims are forgeries. In each detail she corroborated the story told on the witness stand by her husband.

Dr. Forest C. Tyson, superintendent of the Augusta State Hospital, supported the theory of the defence that it would have been impossible for Burke to have carried Bartley's body into the cave in Sugar Berth woods after the murder.

The husband's grief is the more keen, because he has just lost his father, and his mother is dangerously ill.

The wife's departure followed a little quarrel, for which Thomas is truly repentant.

COUNCIL PROBES WORLD H. C. L.

Even American Prices Will Be Considered by European Experts

London, Feb. 28.—Thirty of Europe's most noted economic and financial experts, headed by leading statesmen, have begun an investigation of the world-wide high cost of living.

The inquiry will last fully ten days and will cover all aspects of the question. American prices also are expected to be taken up at the sessions, though the United States is not represented at the conference, which is under the auspices of the supreme council.

The council was spurred into immediate action by the realization that most of the Europe-wide unrest is due to the unchecked rise of prices of food and clothing coupled with the absolute dearth of housing. The statesmen have been given to understand that the people of Europe are little interested in the council's daily peace patchwork and that what they want is instant action to force down the living cost.

Hatred and Intolerance Shown by Ulstermen

THE PRESBYTERIAN AND METHODIST CHURCHES WILL MOVE TO MEET THEM. . . . LET IT BE AGITATED AND FOUGHT OUT FOR A TIME ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE ATLANTIC."

The coming of the Ulster mission, in view of Lord Beaverbrook's repeated public announcements, particularly in Belfast and London, may reasonably be said to be a remarkable coincidence.

Answers to a score of similar accusations made by the Rev. Coote and his associates equally without any basis in truth might be recited, but they are really not necessary. The statement made by the Rev. Mr. Hazleton that in Ulster there was the highest morality, the highest intelligence and the highest power in Ireland, is an example of the spirit in which these men come to preach their doctrine of intolerance and hatred.

Practically all of the group have repeatedly expressed the idea that the root of the trouble is the Catholic Emancipation Act of 1829, and hold that to get Ireland back to being a peaceable and quiet country it is necessary to take the vote from every Irish Catholic; the identical spirit which moved Cromwell to put every man, woman and child in Drogheda to the sword. It is the 20th century application of the Prince Consort's idea of 60 years ago, that the way to settle the Irish question was to tow Ireland out to the middle of the Atlantic and drown all its inhabitants.

IS SYMPATHY NOW A CRIME?

Is it a crime for the sons or daughters or the grandchildren of Irish emigrant parents to sympathize with the ideals for liberty of the people of Ireland, the homeland of their race? This country is their real home, in which their future and that of their descendants is firmly interwoven. They naturally resent being the only white race denied the right to freedom, because this not only concerns their pride in their ancient history, but it will handicap them in the material competition for life's prizes. It condemns them to an inferior position among their neighbors.

As a people the Irish in the United States for more than 140 years have met every test of loyalty and devotion to this country; and having given of their best, have the right, in all fairness, to ask what this country is going to do for them in return; and that their just demands be treated fairly and not be obscured by the pleas of religious bigots representing an unholy cause, who assert that a country is free which is under military subjection to some 75,000 alien soldiers with machine guns, airplanes, etc.; where the habeas corpus act is suspended, where the press is gagged or wiped out, where private houses are raided without warrant or notice and men and women carried out of Ireland to English prisons without trial or hearing. Such a theory of freedom is abhorred by Americans.

For over three thousand years the Jews of the world have been planning a return to the ancient home of their race in Palestine. President Wilson sent one of the justices of the United States Supreme Court to Palestine to help establish there the Zionist State. Is Mr. Justice Brandeis any less a loyal American because he is working for the return of the people of Zion to national freedom? What is the difference between the activity and enthusiasm of the American Irish for liberty for Ireland and the same activity and enthusiasm now being shown by the leading Jews of the United States for freedom for the homeland of their race?

Why is it that the encouragement and supp rt so freely given to the subject races formerly under German, Austrian or Russian control seems to die away when these same people are asked to support the plea for freedom for the subject races under the control of the British Empire? What is the sinister influence at work which makes the difference?

To the Ulster delegation—

In the words of an Irish Protestant, Henry Grattan: "Ireland will never be satisfied as long as the meanest cottager has a link of the British chain clanking to his rags. He may be naked—he shall not be in iron. Though great men should apostasize, yet the Cause will live, and though the speaker should die yet the immortal fire shall outlast the organ which conveyed it, and the breath of liberty, like the words of the holy man, will not die with the prophet, but survive him."

THE END.

LIQUOR BLANKS GIVEN DOCTORS

600 Physicians in Boston District Have Permit to Prescribe Whiskey

Prescription blanks upon which physicians with permits may prescribe liquor have been issued from the Internal Revenue office to the 600 physicians in this district who have applied for them and consequently druggists are cautioned to recognize prescriptions for liquor only when made on the officially numbered form.

EXCEPTION TO RULE.

The only exception to this rule, according to Acting Collector Andrew J. Casey, is in any case where a physician holding a permit to prescribe liquor is not in possession of such form, due to any reason justifying such condition, and delay in procuring the same might result in loss of life, aggravation of ailment or intense suffering.

Under such circumstances he may prescribe intoxicating liquor upon a form other than the official blank, provided such prescription contains the information required by the Federal prohibition enforcement officer and which is contained upon the recognized form, and a record of the same is made.

These prescription books cannot be issued to physicians until they have made application to prescribe and a permit issued them. No bond is required of a physician to secure a permit.

MAY ADMINISTER LIQUOR.

Besides being allowed to prescribe, physicians may administer intoxicating liquor, as regulations provide that distilled spirits and alcoholic medicinal preparations may be administered by physicians to their patients for medicinal purposes in cases where the use of such liquor is believed necessary to afford relief of some known ailment, and delay in procuring the same through a retail pharmacist upon a prescription might result in loss of life, aggravation of the ailment or intense suffering.

Physicians may make application for permits to administer liquor to patients for medicinal purposes, and if approved the permits will be issued from Washington to use the liquor in the course of their practice. A maximum quantity of six quarts a year will be allowed a physician under such permit, but it cannot be sold or used other than as described.

Physicians are not permitted to write prescriptions for liquor for their own use, and the law provides that not more than a pint of spirituous liquor to be taken internally shall be prescribed for use by the same person within any period of ten days, and no prescription shall be filled more than once.

WOMAN BEMOANS HIGH COST OF INHERITING $200,000 THESE DAYS

LOVER OF SIMPLE LIFE

Mrs. Stilwell of Springfield Has Hopes of Keeping Wolf From Door

Springfield, Feb. 28.—Being an heir nowadays means just one expense after another, according to Mrs. William B. Stilwell of this city, whose husband was left $200,000 from the estate of William P. Cowan, former president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

By "scrimping" and saving Mrs. Stilwell hopes to make their "fortune" last for the rest of their lives, that is after they have paid a Federal inheritance tax, a State inheritance tax, a surtax, an income tax and lawyers and administrators of the estate.

INHERITING BEAT H. C. L.

Mrs. Stilwell asserts that the high cost of inheriting these days is quite as great as the high cost of living, but with rigid economy they will manage to keep the wolf away from the family door, despite their heavily taxable inheritance.

"When Mr. Stilwell comes home from Chicago, where he has about settled up his affairs, he will go to work here at home again, hard to work, to earn enough money to pay all the other taxes that will remain," she says. "It's a merry game—inheriting money under the present system. It's awfully good for the government, but it is expensive for the heirs. That is why we will have to economize to make the two ends meet."

Mrs. Stilwell was interviewed outside the Stilwell residence at No. 227 Atwater road, where, with market basket on her arm, she was waiting for a trolley to go to town for groceries.

MORE HEIRS SHOW UP.

"In 1918 Mr. Cowan, Mr. Stilwell's cousin, died intestate, through an error. His wife had died just a month before him. They each had made wills leaving their property to the other. If Mr. Cowan had lived a little longer, he would have left the money—which totalled $3,000,000 altogether, I am told—to the Salvation Army. However, he did not.

"We read of their deaths in the papers, and found that he died without a will. My husband and three other cousins made application for the money. Nearly a year went by, the estate was about to be settled and we should have had $750,000 each, when out of a clear sky five other cousins, with perfectly good cousinly claims, showed up, and the whole business of taxes and supertaxes and the rest of it had to be opened up again."

Mrs. Stilwell has been very hard pressed as to what she will do with the money, provided there is any left after the taxes are paid.

HAS AUTO AND FLIVVER.

"If only I were a washerwoman, looking up from my tub to get the money, it would be a better story. If my husband were only a carpenter, instead of superintendent of construction for a sporting goods house, it would lend the affair more romance. If this were the case, we would hardly be able to get together the rest of the money for the taxes."

"We did think of buying a new auto. But we have had an auto these many years—in fact, we have had two, an automobile and a flivver. There is no particular thing I have desired all my life that I now can buy with this money. I have always lived simply and comfortably."

These Twins Are Only Four Leap-Years Old

Sixteen years old, and only three birthdays to date; this is the lot of the "Walker twins." Edna May and Ethel Gladys, of West Somerville, who will celebrate their fourth birthday tomorrow.

They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walker, Jr., of No. 186 Powder House boulevard, and were born February 29, four leap-years ago, in 1904. Their fourth birthday will be celebrated tonight at their home, where a party is to be given in their honor by the Intermediate League of the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, of which they are members.

Edna recently had a little fun at the expense of a leader at a revival meeting at their church, who asked that the youngest person present stand up. Edna rose. When the leader said that he did not mean misses in their "'teens," Edna explained that she had not yet passed her fourth birthday. The leader was dumfounded until the case was explained.

The twins look so much alike that they puzzle their teachers at the Somerville High School. Both are musical. Edna is a pianist and sings alto in the High School Glee Club. Ethel plays the violin in the high school orchestra and has a soprano voice.

Plant Strikers Regret Company Action Refusing Prelate as Arbitrator

Strikers of the Thomas G. Plant Company, following refusal of the company to arbitrate, have adopted a resolution and sent another letter to Cardinal O'Connell, whom they had asked to act as arbitrator to adjust grievances between them and the company. The letter says in part:

"This committee regrets very much that the Plant Company refuses to accept Your Eminence as an arbitrator and to note further that apparently it has irrevocably decided not to arbitrate.

"In any event, so far as arbitration is concerned we presume that this closes the incident with Your Eminence, but the committee feels that you should be informed that certain statements contained in the letter from the Plant company are not in accordance with the facts.

"For example, the statement that the company did not know that we asked Your Eminence to serve as an arbitrator until it was read in the newspapers. We hold a postal receipt of a registered letter signed for the Plant company which contained a notification of our action.

"If, in the circumstances, Your Eminence could consistently and with propriety intercede with the officials of the company to the end that some settlement of this unhappy controversy may be affected, we earnestly urge that this be done, but if the pre-emptory rejection of Your Eminence as arbitrator would make it impossible for you to approach them on a matter of conciliation, then pay no more attention to it, and the strike committee will understand the reason."

The letter is signed by A. P. Delfino for the joint strike committee.

In the resolutions adopted at a mass meeting in Columbus Hall, the strikers, it was stated, would accept any fair person as an arbitrator and suggested Governor Coolidge, Mayor Peters, any judge of the Supreme or Superior Court or the Boston Municipal Court.

WOMEN TO BARE CLOTH FRAUDS

Consumers' League in Campaign to Promote Saner Buying to Cut H. C. L.

Measures to reduce the high cost of living and to bring before the public the necessity for saner and more careful buying are under discussion for the future program of the Consumers' League of Massachusetts. Co-operation with the retail stores is being sought to emphasize the better values in clothing, and to demonstrate that cost is not always an indication of quality.

Mrs. Arthur C. Rotch, acting president for the league during the year's leave of absence of Mrs. H. W. Hallowell, newly elected head of the organization, discussed the proposed measures bearing on the problems of the increased cost of food and clothing.

WILL PROTECT PUBLIC.

"The Consumers' League represents the public," Mrs. Rotch stated, "and is pledged to whatever methods may promote the interests of those who are eager for a saner and more just industrial basis. A plan is under consideration to enlist the co-operation of the retail stores in emphasizing the better values of clothing. Exhibitions might be held in certain departments, or on certain days in the week, whereby specially priced goods, of genuine value, would be brought to the attention of those who seek high quality rather than high cost.

"Another proposition is to insist that "shoddy" goods shall bear on the reverse side the red marking that shall distinguish it from pure wool. This may protect the buyer from being charged the same price that the genuine material brings.

SEE 16-YEAR SCHOOL AGE.

"A second aspect of our campaign against high living is our endorsement of the Kendrick bill protesting against the monopoly of the meat packers and providing for public warehouses and stockyards. High prices resulting from the packers' control of other unrelated food products will be dealt a great blow with the passage of the bill.

"Other plans for the year concern the safeguarding of women and children in industry, especially those whose conditions have not been investigated in previous years. Hotel workers and those employed in restaurants and bakeries where unsatisfactory working conditions prevail, will receive special protection.

"Legislative measures to raise the school age limit to 16 years and to provide for a thorough medical examination of children old enough to enter an industry are endorsed heartily by the organization, and every effort will be made to urge their passage in the Senate."

Sight of Nude Girl in Opera Shocks Paris

Paris, Feb. 28.—The biggest theatrical sensation in years was sprung at the premiere of Henri Cain's new opera, "Quo Vadis," at the Champs Elysees Theatre when Miss D'Herlys emerged from a huge oyster shell and proceeded to divest herself of every bit of habiliment.

Miss D'Herlys is well known in New York, whither she went in March, 1916, to rejoin the former jockey, Tod Sloan, after both had been expelled from England.

The audience was utterly amazed, and cries of "Censor! Censor!" were heard from many parts of the house.

FEAR STATE MAY LOSE MILLIONS

Rhode Island Assemblymen Balk at Ownership of Wrecked Trolley System

Providence, Feb. 28.—State ownership of street railways under private management, as recommended to the General Assembly by the receivers, threatens the State with a loss of over $6,000,000 at the expiration of twenty-five years, say Assemblymen of financial experience. The receivers argue that the State, by issuing $17,000,000 in bonds, would own the trolleys at the expiration of the twenty-five-year lease.

"I find the State will be out of pocket over six millions," said a high State official.

What to do with the trolley system is a big problem with political leaders. Luigi De Pasquale, deputy floor leader of the House of Representatives, says the receivers want to dump a crippled road on the State under the guise of State ownership. He declares:

"I have advocated junking this wreck of a road. I have repeatedly offered resolutions for three years seeking a genuine State ownership. Not at the fabulous price of $32,000,000 the receivers say the road is worth, but at the physical valuation after the cripple is relegated to the dump heap."

Lloyd George Sings to Ukulele's Exotic Air

London, Feb. 28.—Hitherto Lloyd George's chief relaxation from the cares of state has been golf. It has been his rigorous habit, no matter how pressing his duties, to leave his office and seek a few hours' rest at the Surrey Downs every week-end.

Now it develops, according to Mrs. Nora Langhorne Phipps, sister of Lady Astor, he's taken up singing as a more refreshing mental stimulant. When a guest at Cliveden, Lady Astor's magnificent country home, he frequently settles down before the great blazing hearth in the hall, and with the firelight playing across his face, sings for hours on end delightful, half-forgotten melodies from the scores of ancient Welsh bards to the soft, languorous strains of Mrs. Phipps' ukulele.

"The Prime Minister loves nothing better than to settle down before the fire and join us in singing old-time melodies," said Mrs. Phipps. "He has a fine silvery tenor voice."

The Prime Minister has commented on the absolute mental relaxation obtained by singing, according to Mrs. Phipps.

"Golf and billiards necessitate mental effort," she says. "Singing requires a minimum. That's why it does him more good, in my opinion, than the more active forms of amusements."

Solons Decline Beds in Fire Station

New Bedford, Feb. 28.—After putting in a strenuous hour's work trying to find accommodations for members of the Committee on Municipal Finance of the State Legislature, who are coming to New Bedford, Mayor Ashley saw his efforts wasted when the committee declined with thanks the Mayor's offer of sleeping rooms at the central fire engine house. The refusal was caused, not by disinclination on the part of the legislators to bunk at fire headquarters, but because they did not desire to be under obligation to the city government.

IRISH BOND DRIVE LAGS

Committee Confident, However, That Extra Week Will Put Loan Over

Boston to date has raised more than $150,000 in the Irish Republic loan drive, and subscriptions continue to reach the various headquarters in the city and throughout the State in growing numbers, according to announcement made at campaign headquarters in the American House.

Today was originally fixed as the end of the drive in the State, but with the time extended another week because of the bad weather which frustrated canvassers in the past six days, it is assured that the Hub will go sailing over the allotted $500,000 mark, while Massachusetts as a whole is confidently expected to far exceed its $1,000,000 quota.

WEATHER HOLDS UP DRIVE.

Growing activity is reported from various cities outside Boston, Lowell being well in the lead with subscriptions totalling nearly $55,000. Of the towns, Milton, with a population of 9,900, only 2,000 of whom are of Irish descent, is well in the lead, having subscribed $3,000 and being well ahead of its quota.

Malden reported subscriptions and pledges of $1,600 as the result of a mass meeting there.

The Wakefield committee reported that $3,000 worth of bond certificates had been sold there.

One of the picturesque subscribers was Thomas McHugh, a sturdy little fellow of eleven years. He lives with his parents at No. 25 Maple street, Milton, and out of his own savings, representing a long period of thrift, he subscribed for a $25 bond certificate.

GREEKS ARE INTERESTED.

Men and women without any strain of Irish blood in them were at headquarters in the American House to subscribe. One was a Greek, another a Belgian and there were many Americans who confessed themselves only recent converts to Sinn Fein. One of these, a Greek, offered to canvass the Greek sections and to speak in public if necessary and his offer was accepted.

George Arthur Crawford, of No. 72 Jewett street, Newton, who described himself as "an Orangeman born and bred, but a Sinn Feiner by conviction," was another purchaser of a bond.

Several persons who came with Fenian bonds, issued more than half a century ago when a relatively small number of men tried to achieve the freedom of Ireland without the present unanimity, exchanged them, but others balked at the last minute and would not part with the old bonds which their forbears had purchased.

JEWISH WOMAN SUBSCRIBES.

Mrs. Delia Kelly canvassing Ward 6 sold a bond certificate to Mrs. Sarah Gordon, a Jewish woman, and Mrs. Gordon promised that a number of her friends and relatives of the Jewish faith had decided to help the Irish cause along.

More than $2,000 was subscribed at a meeting of the County Mayo Men's Benevolent Society and its women's auxiliary.

Boston Council, No. 68, K. of C., subscribed for a $100 bond and endorsed the drive in a resolution.

There will be a big rally in Gorman's Theatre, Roslindale, at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when organization of Ward 23 committee will be perfected. Michael Leen, ward chairman, will preside, and Colonel Timothy Moynihan of the New York "Fighting 69th" Infantry, Charles S. O'Connor of the Boston School committee, Daniel Foley, president of the Common Cause Forum, and P. J. Moynihan, State secretary, F. O. I. F., will speak.

School Committeeman O'Connor will deliver an address at a meeting in Kane Post Hall, Bowdoin and Hamilton streets, next Monday evening. Redmond S. Fitzgerald, Representative James J. Moynihan and Representative John T. Carey will speak.

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of New York, Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, Edward F. McSweeney, John J. Foley, John F. Harrigan and P. J. Moynihan will speak at a meeting in Payne Memorial Hall, No. 9 Appleton street, on Sunday evening at eight o'clock.

Tells of Starved, Half-Naked Children in Ulster

Rev. Maurice Murphy of Brooklyn spoke at the meeting of the John Mitchell Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom at Roughan Hall, Charlestown.

Describing conditions of real poverty in the slums of Ulster, he told of seeing eight and ten persons in one room, little children half-starved and half-naked. Hundreds of these children, eleven, twelve and thirteen years of age, work ankle deep in water for seven cents a day, he said.

Attorney Thomas H. Mahoney presented four arguments for Irish independence, based on law and justice. Michael H. Fahey presided and was pleased at the large sale of bonds, being chairman of the Ward 3 section of the drive.

CLAIM $350,000 FOR DOCK WORK

Contractors Again Charge State Misled Them in Statement on Boston Project

Involved in another legal row with the State over the Boston drydock, the contracting firm of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins has put in a claim for $350,000 over the contract price for building the dock, it became known today.

That the State is preparing a counter-claim of at least $126,000 against the firm for failure to dredge the basin approaches to the dock, in accordances with its agreement, also became known.

The claim of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins has been referred to an arbitration board consisting of Charles R. Gow, the Boston engineer, representing the firm; Charles T. Main of Winchester, an engineer, representing the State, and former State Treasurer Arthur B. Chapin, who was selected by Gow and Main.

About $270,000 of the $350,000 claim of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins is based on the firm's allegation that it was misled and deceived by the State into believing that there was a solid rock foundation on the drydock site, which would be available for use in making concrete for the dock. It claims that the report of a geologist employed by the State said that the rock was substantial, but when the firm attempted to use it the foundation was found to be mere shale, which crumbled at touch. As a result the company claims it was put to the additional expense of purchasing and transporting concrete, and that it suffered the loss of delay and extra plant maintenance.

SYMPHONY MEN MAY RESIGN

Warn Trustees Disruption of Band Will Follow Failure to Grant Increase

Members of Boston Symphony Orchestra have thrown down the gauntlet to the trustees, threatening disruption of the famous organization if higher wages and better working conditions under union rules are not forthcoming.

"We joined the union," said Ernest E. Gardner, one of the players' committee of seven that served the ultimatum on the trustees, "because we wish to be free men. We intend to be serfs no longer."

In this supplementary statement to a Boston American reporter Mr. Gardner predicted that seventy-five of the ninety-five players in the orchestra will quit at the end of the present season if their membership in the union is interfered with or if they do not get higher salaries and better working conditions.

HINT MEN MAY RESIGN.

"This is not a threat," he added. "It is merely a statement of what will happen at the end of the present season if the things we ask are not complied with. The board of trustees has been autocratic. There is much discontent among the players. Between 75 and 84 of the 95 members have already joined the union."

Mr. Gardner declared that "it is ridiculous to say that the Boston Symphony Orchestra will not give such artistic performances if its members are union players. We will give better performances, because we will be more contented. The argument that we will give inferior concerts because we join a union is ridiculous."

In a letter to the trustees, sent to Judge Frederick P. Cabot, president of the board, the players' committee declares that the majority of the orchestra members have joined the union and insist upon better working conditions and higher wages. The committee requests that "contracts existing between individual members of the Association * * * be so reformed as to enable the members to comply with the duties and obligations fixed by the by-laws of the American Federation of Musicians and the principles for which the latter organiaztion stands."

OPPOSE DISRUPTION.

Touching on the discord in the orchestra the communication reads: "The perfection of any organization depends as much upon the material condition of its members as it does upon their skill and proficiency. There can be no approach to the goal of perfection where there exists discontent and disaffection."

Another section reads: "We wish to assure the trustees and those who are interested in the welfare of the orchestra that our course was prompted as much by a desire to maintain a high standard in the orchestra, to encourage music as an art in the United States, as it was to improve our own condition."

Those who comprised the committee are: Chairman, H. Ringwall, No. 20 Queensbury street; L. H. Kurkdjie, No. 333 Massachusetts avenue; Gustav F. Heim, No. 81 Orchard street, Jamaica Plain; Otto Roth, No. 16 Arlington street, W. Traupe, No. 47 Paul Gore street, Jamaica Plain; Florian Wittman, No. 11 Tetlow street Roxbury, and Ernest E. Gardned, No. 61 Court street.

On Life Beyond the Grave

Letters of Poetess Reveal "Communications From the Spirit World"

(The following hitherto unpublished letters from America's greatest poetess to her favorite brother, Marcus P. Wheeler, Windsor, Wis., a Civil War veteran, constitute a remarkable human document. At one and the same time they set forth what she believed her certain knowledge of the life hereafter, based upon communications from her husband Robert M. Wilcox, who died in 1916, and also very interesting side lights on the daily life and views of this writer whose name is known to every one who reads. These letters will be printed in daily instalments.)

1756 Wilton Place, Hollywood, California, Friday, April 13, 1917.

Dear Marcus:

Despite the bad combination above, I went to the dentist and had two teeth out and two put in. The new process of tooth pulling is absolutely painless. I never felt anything but a dull jerk. Always before I have taken gas—save once, in Germany, used cocaine, and was nearly killed by pain and shock. This, however, is a German preparation used to dull the tooth and all its nerves and the gums, and it is wonderful. I am to have about $100 worth of work done on my mouth before I leave for the East; people come to this special dentist from all over the land. He is at the top of his profession. Ethel's beautiful teeth, which Robert paid to have regulated and cared for, I am having fixed up, as they have been neglected while she was on the ranch. If only I could have had my teeth cared for as a child, what pain and expense I would have been saved.

Your "psychic" arguments, Marcus, are very crude. It is not worth my time to answer them. This preface from a great man's book ("After Death—What?" by Cesare Lombroso) is of more interest, and more convincing, than reams of argument from those who never investigated and consequently have only second-hand knowledge on the subject. Please do not class New Thought and Theosophy as one thing. They are quite separate as philosophies.

New Thought deals mainly with controlling material conditions, health, wealth, power, and whatever else we want on earth. Theosophy deals with character-building, and an understanding of cause and effect—remembrance of past lives and preparation for future ones. It is always progressive. Animals in time become humans, humans never return to animal form. The ignorance of people on this subject is amazing.

I am quite well acquainted with my last incarnation, and have data on four previous ones, when Robert and I were lovers. We missed each other the last time, but knew each other instantly when we met in this. There is only one physical body for each incarnation—one astral, one mental, through which the spirit works into the next plane, which is all spirit and formless—the realm of spirits of light. This process often requires a thousand or two years, sometimes less.

The absolutely material man comes back quickly, as a pupil is kept after school who will not study in school hours. These are just the A, B, C primary facts of a stupendous philosophy known to thousands of brilliant men and women.

Living with such a man as Robert thirty-two years, and knowing the facts of his psychic powers, make it easy for me to understand how the "Knowers" acquired their wonderful knowledge. Meeting such men as Sinnett and Stead in London, and Mrs. Besant and Mr. Warrington, the heads of the Theosophical Society, and reading the books of such great men as Lodge, Lombroso and other well-known scientists, I am quite satisfied to go on in the path I have trod for thirty years. I could not be diverted from it by arguments of those who know nothing of these subjects, people or books.

FRIENDS AMONG ORTHODOX.

Meantime I have dear friends among the Roman Catholics, Mohammedans, Jews and all orthodox creeds. We get along beautifully together; even when they try to lead me into their particular path I feel tenderly toward them. The one thing I cannot stand is the blatant atheist, who, without one kind reason, tries to convince the broken-hearted mother that she will never see her child again. This seems to me a devil's act, worthy of purgatory. Every other kind of bigot on earth is sometimes silent, but the atheist, never.

I will send you shortly a snapshot of myself on my horse, taken by Harry. Easter Day was a difficult one for me to get through. It was full of memories of wonderful Easters with Robert, in every part of the earth. I felt I could not spend it in any ordinary way, especially in the deadly orthodox way. So just the right thing was sent to me. The dear Robert Waltons, who took me, bruised and bleeding, into their home last June, took me at half-past-four, Easter morning, in their motor car, up to the top of Mount Hollywood, to a musical service.

No, I do not think that because

"Fleas have other fleas to bite 'em
And so on, ad infinitum"

that we should go on breeding animals for slaughter, and fowls for the horrible atrocities of transportation, especially as there is plenty of food in the world without doing these things, and foods which would do away with half the diseases of mortals were meat abolished. But then, why discuss these things, as Gelett Burgess says:

"The cat produces fiddle-strings,
The fish produces glue,
The cow produces steaks and things—
I do not care, do you?"

PLANS TRIP.

I am to arise about half-past six tomorrow morning, and take the trolley to Pasadena to spend the day with Warren and Justine.

Faithfully yours, my dear brother,
ELLA.

Short Beach, Conn.,
July 3, 1917.

Dear Marcus:

It seems strange I got the only news so far of Ella Giles' death from Wisconsin. No one has yet written or missed me from there. I envy her the reunion with her beloved. I wrote her after my return if she went on ahead to get a message to me if possible.

She had a very distinct vision of Robert last Summer, and she had had three very remarkable ones of her father, one of which resulted in her being saved from serious sickness through bad plumbing. She knew nothing of it till her father came with the message; then she sent for a plumber, had the place overhauled, and found the condition exactly as described. This was twenty years ago. Only twice since has anything of that nature come to her—she never sought it.

I am sorry you missed my plays. I have not seen "A Beautiful Lie," but my relatives here saw it and said it was exceptionally fine. It is made from my poem in "World Voices." "The Reverie in the Station House," "Angel or Demon" I do not care much much for. All of these plays should have been exploited three years ago. I had my advance royalties then and get nothing now. Their delay has prevented other new ones coming out which would bring me profit. It is a most vexatious business. But it may bring me fortune by and by.

AWAITS DEATH.

It certainly is lonesome the way we Wheelers all live on and on. But I trust I will be fully ripe for the other world by not going "green" from this. And it can't be so terribly long now to wait. The last year and a half has been so full of all kinds of suffering—I doubt if any others can be as painful.

Added to the colossal loss, came the frightful knowledge last March that I had a small tumor on my breast! And while I do not want long life I do not want lingering death by painful inches. I have had treatment for this malady since July, and it has almost disappeared. The doctor says I will have no trouble from it. But the treatment took lots of time and money—X and Violet Rays. I can continue the treatment in Paris and in London I shall be the guest of the most eminent X-ray specialist there.

However, if sudden death should come to me "over there" I should escape the need of further treatment and worry over lingering maladies. I think the tumor was a reflex from my bitter grief and misery in California.

Hotel Belmont, New York,
December, 1917.

Dear Marcus:

I am enclosing for you, and sending Ed and Sarah the same little holiday gift, which is from the advance price I am to get for my memoirs.

There is a little string tied to my gift to you. I want you to promise to go to two movies a week; more if you will, but two anyway.

MENTIONS COUGH.

I have been sick with my annual cold, the kind I used to have and kept John Ableman awake with my "bark-from-the-tombs" cough. It comes every year no matter where I am. Sometimes early, sometimes late. Then no more for another year. I am glad it came now as I will be all right when I sail. I once had it come on the day I sailed and a windy ship is a bad place for bronchitis.

I shall know in a week or ten days just the date of my sailing. The head man of all ships here nearly fainted with emotion when he was told by the ship agent at this hotel who it was wanted booking. Said he adored me as a poet and would do everything to help me. This is all as Robert told me it would be. He said he was making plans for me and not to worry.

The editor of the Cosmopolitan is particularly interested in my psychic researches and wants me to give them freely in my story. I could not tell a true story of my life unless I did. I am glad I have lived to find the intelligent part of the world ready to let me tell these facts in my memoirs. I am sure you will find my memoirs interesting. You knew so little of my life after you went to Dakota, it will all be very new to you. I have found it most entertaining work albeit somewhat a wrench on the emotions. I feel very glad that I have been able to live a life that the public will be helped by reading. All who have read it say it is a tonic. A busy day, so goodby,

ELLA.

Am sorry my intent of giving you a real pleasure miscarried. Please mail "Nathaniel Worth" in enclosed envelope to a friend who wants it. I have had great delight in it—so have all my most brilliant friends.

Regarding Europe, I have no plans for a "pleasure trip." Pleasure is an obsolete word to me. Neither has your sweet suggestion of a desire for spectacular heroism on my part a foundation. I have many letters from men in trenches. I speak French and could find usefulness and education over there. My going depends on what friends over there write in reply to my suggestion of the possibility.

No one dies till his time comes—no matter where he goes.

Sincerely,
ELLA.

Lady Astor Declares Her Sex Is Wisest

London, Feb. 28.—"Woman, between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one is far older and wiser in many ways than man," said Lady Astor in her second speech in the House of Commons, in which she supported the franchise bill giving votes to women at the age of twenty-one instead of thirty, as at present.

It is calculated the change will confer the voting right upon 1,000,000 women, giving them a preponderance over man.

"Women develop sooner than men," said Lady Astor. "It is quite natural that woman should be wiser than man. The fact that there are more women than men in Britain is all the more reason why they should have more representation."

LEGION SEEKS TO MAKE CITIZENS

Commander D'Olier Transmits Instructions for the 8,000 Posts Throughout U. S.

A nation-wide campaign to the naturalized thousands of ex-service men of foreign birth has been inaugurated by the American Legion. Franklin D'Olier, national commander, today sent the following instructions to State Department commanders, who in turn will transmit them to the eight thousand posts of the organization scattered throughout the country:

"Above everything else, the American Legion and American Legion members stand for 100 per cent. Americanism. Legion members are men who have fought to defend American ideals. Upon re-entering civilian life they are most anxious to see these ideals preserved. To this end, every effort should be made to see that all Legion members enjoy the rights and privileges and appreciate the duties of American citizenship.

"The law provides that any man who served honorably in the army, navy or marine corps during the war, who was not a citizen when he entered the service, may become naturalized upon presentation of his petition for naturalization, without making the preliminary declaration of intention, without proof of five years' residence within the United States and without payment of the customary fees.

"Under the provisions of this law many men were naturalized while at the training camps, and have already received their citizenship papers. However, there are still many eligible to immediate citizenship, who have not as yet received their papers and a special effort should be made to reach these men and see that they take advantage of their opportunity. This work is a service not only to the man himself, but is also a service in the interests of 100 per cent. Americanism."

CORNED BEEF

20 Cents Per Lb.

Here's one fine way to reduce the grocery bill. This meat is all solid meat—the very best the navy could buy. It has been navy inspected and O. K.'d. Its condition is absolutely guaranteed. The navy bought this food in the same way it purchased all of its food—with the most consummate care. A fine, full-flavored, appetizing and palatable meat which any family should be eager to purchase at the low price the navy has determined upon. The navy wants every family in America to have an opportunity to secure as much of this exceedingly healthful food as it desires before it is offered to wholesale food dealers who are awaiting eagerly an opportunity to buy it for resale. So decide on how much you want—ask any friends how much they want. Tell your neighbors about it. Get them together and make up an order for everybody. It will be far better to have an order for a big quantity come to the navy at one time. Although single orders will be filled just as quickly, large combination orders will save everybody something in carrying charges. It is more than likely that this will be your very last opportunity; so figure on getting all you will need. It will keep indefinitely and need not be kept on ice. Price per pound 20 cents. Orders not taken for less than one case. There are twelve 6-pound cans to the case—72 pounds of solid, health-building, strength-sustaining meat. Price per case, $14.40. Shipped by express, carrying charge collect.

JERSEYS

How often have you wanted to "loaf around" without a coat—or do some odd job that might muss up a good coat, or have something to put on under a coat on a cold day? This is it. The regular, black Navy Jersey. For grown boys and men they are wonderful. There are few men or boys who can't use it. Made of fine wool. Every one navy inspected. The very Jerseys that kept our boys warm out on the roaring ocean. Now yours at a price you'll never have a chance to get again. Sizes 36 to 44. Price, each, $4.75. Weight, 1 lb.

WHISK BROOMS

U. S. Navy quality. Buy all you can use for the next five years. Navy surplus price for 6, only $2.10. No smaller quantity than six will be shipped. Weight, 2 lbs. 4 oz

WOOLEN SOCKS

Here's a great chance to stock up on elegant quality, medium weight woolen socks—much like a fine merino or cashmere. Look at the price—then order all you want the first time. This is the last chance you may get this season. Probably the last chance forever. These socks are a fawn gray and put together like a watch. Bully for low shoes. The big thing is to figure out how many you are going to need in the next five years or so—and tell the Navy about it. Then for the rest of your life you can talk about "those wool socks I bought from the Navy." Sizes medium to large. Orders not taken for less than six pairs. Price of six pairs, $2.70. Weight for six pairs, 10 oz.

Moderation of A. H. Woods

There is going to be some good acting in "The Blue Flame" in which Theda Bara makes her debut on the spoken stage in Boston, even if the star should not equal her screen reputation, and I don't know why she shouldn't. A. H. Woods has surrounded her with Alan Dinehart, Donald Gallaher, DeWitt Jennings and Thais Lawton, all tried and true performers and every one getting a salary that must make Al Woods wince when he looks at the pay roll. What he is paying Theda is probably appalling.

Under the circumstances we can only admire his love for art and his extraordinary restraint in coming to a medium-sized theatre like the Majestic, for he could probably show her in a circus tent and pack 'em in.

Elsie's Gang

This entertainment which Elsie Janis brings to the Tremont is a sort of echo of a state of affairs now history, the invasion of France by the Americans. Miss Janis was one of the most willing workers among the entertainers of the soldiers, perhaps the best known actress who went over there.

Her gang includes a group of boys who were in the service, whose talents as entertainers developed with the A. E. F. and who had never appeared professionally until Miss Janis engaged them. I am told that Jerry Hoeckstra has a tenor voice of uncommon quality. Bill Kendell, who acted as her accompanist in France, comes of a theatrical family though he had to go into the army to become an actor. His mother is Queenie Vassar, Mrs. Joe Cawthorn.

New York's Bohemia

Greenwich Village is a seedy settlement near Washington square, New York, where a few artists and their models, some writers and a handful of musicians found lodgings, putting up with the meanness of the surroundings because of their cheapness.

A horde of writers of passionate fiction made use of this little community, the genius of Urban and other scene painters was called upon to depict it in musical comedy settings, and Greenwich Village now represents to the rest of the country what the Quartier Latin of Paris represented to New York and what Bohemia represented to the Parisians.

The Greenwich Village Follies which settle at the Shubert next Monday started in the Little Theatre in Greenwich Village but speedily moved up town. It burlesques so cleverly some of the characteristics of the village and the professional villagers of the present time that it amused New York for nearly a season.

Practically the only change in the cast is the substitution of Frances White for Bessie McCoy Davis, in no sense a change for the worst.

Writes With Both Hands

There is no more versatile writer living than Mary Roberts Rinehart, whose "Bab" gives Helen Hayes the chance of her young life. Mrs. Rhinehart started with fiction about nurses and hospitals. Then she wrote a book which was turned into one of the funniest farces in years, "Seven Days," which turned up here very recently as a musical comedy entitled "Tumble In." During the war she went to France and sent sob stories from the trenches. Then she wrote travel yarns, roughing it tales of the west. There is no branch of literature she hasn't taken a fall out of.

When I first heard that "Bab" had been dramatized I feared that this was a large part of her charm, but eccentric spelling of the sub-deb after seeing Miss Hayes I didn't miss the spelling at all.

Applause Such Sweet Music

There is no sweeter music in the world than the sound of large horny hands being struck violently together to the ear of an actor or actress.

The camera is a better paymaster than the theatrical producer, but it can't furnish applause, and we have daily evidence that vanity is a stronger force than average in the return of film stars at great financial sacrifice to the spoken stage.

Theda Bara is one example. Alice Brady is another. Elsie Ferguson has determined to come back to the boards, and even such gold producers as Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin are eager to let the people see them in person.

Doris Kenyon at the Plymouth is a girl whose reputation was entirely made upon the screen, and who is now winning applause in propria persona by climbing in and out of a bed. I really don't blame Miss Kenyon for wanting to show herself as she really is.

The camera cannot photograph gold hair and pink cheeks. It is unsuitable to reproduce a charming laugh or a sweet voice, or an exquisite negligee in bright colors. Having all those things in addition to the qualities which made her a film star Miss Kenyon is abundantly justified in introducing herself to the theatre goer, even at great financial sacrifice.

History of a Funny Name

When Rachel Crothers had written "39 East" she couldn't think of a name for it. Suggestions from friends did not strike her as practical and she finally turned the play over to a New York dramatic editor asking him to read it and suggest a title.

A week later he gave it back.

"I couldn't think of a suitable name," he declared. "It's so darn improbable that you probably won't need any name for it. Tell me, Miss Crothers, where could such a thing have really happened?"

"Why at such a number East such a street," she replied, naming a boarding house she had once patronized.

"Then why not call it by the street and number?" he proposed.

"We will," replied the authoress, and she did. Only she omitted the number of the street for obvious reasons.

Newbold's Ker-nuckles.

When you stop to think of it, the comedians who have impressed their personalities upon the theatre going public in the last ten years are not numerous.

We still have a group like Hitchcock, Collier, Richard Carle, De Wolfe Hopper in active service, but they are getting on, yea verily they are. Age has taken W. H. Crane, Francis Wilson, Frank Daniels, Eddie Foy, and Jimmie Powers from the boards.

There are a few young fellows like Al Jolson, Ed Wynn and Clifton Crawford who are popular, but Robinson Newbold of "The Royal Vagabond" has made a bigger hit on Broadway than anybody in several seasons. Newbold has worked hard and long for his big chance. For fifteen years he has been touring the country, playing Gilbert and Sullivan, going out in second companies of Raymond Hitchcock successes, but never getting on Broadway. When he did get his chance he was a riot. He made George Cohan laugh, and George has since been his heartiest admirer.

When Newbold made his first act appearance the opening night he wore an Alpine costume with the customary bare knees. These were all covered with patches of cotton wool held in place by plaster. The audience gave him a laugh because they got the idea that he was probably unaccustomed to mountain climbing and skinned his knees on the Alps.

Newbold, however, is a legitimate comedian and scorns to resort to cheap tricks of this description. He fell over a bench and landed on some sharp surface during the chase number in the first act just before coming to Boston, and he is removing the monuments on his knees as rapidly as possible.

A Lot They Haven't Read

Edward Clark, who turned "Checkers" into the musical comedy "Honey Girl," told a droll story about the late Paul Armstrong, the playwright, which is worth repeating. Armstrong at the time of the tale was a sporting writer and a rough diamond. His education had holes in it.

Very late one night he roused up Clark at his house and insisted on telling him a situation that he thought would make a good play.

"Did you ever see 'Hamlet'?" asked Clark.

"Nope," replied Armstrong.

"Then go home and get a copy. You'll find your situation in it."

Crestfallen, Armstrong departed. About a week later Clark met him at the Lambs.

"Say, Eddie," he bubbled, "'Hamlet's' some play. I made a scenario of it," and he spread before the gaze of the astonished Clark a check for $500 signed by the leading movie producer of the day.

The movie man had never read 'Hamlet,' either.

It's No Silver Cornet Band

I don't want to butt into this Boston Symphony salary controversy but from Judge Cabot's published statements he thinks he can hire men who know how to play symphony music as easily as he could get bandsmen to perform in a Labor Day parade.

We are fortunate enough in Boston to possess 100 wonderful musicians and it will be a lot cheaper in the end for the supporters of the orchestra to pay them what they require to live decently, than to let any of them go to eagerly waiting orchestras in other cities, and then try to hire others to take their places.

Manager Brennan did an astonishing thing in finding enough good men to fill the places of the Germans who were given the gate. He may not have such good luck next time.

McISAAC says that

"39 EAST," at the Wilbur, is a comedy of love, springtime and the kind of folks who live in boarding houses. Charmingly performed by Constance Binney, Henry Hull and a good cast.

"THE ROYAL VAGABOND," at the Colonial, is a spirited and merry comic opera, with a good list of principals and a pretty chorus. George Cohan's handiwork is in evidence all over it.

"THE GIRL IN THE LIMOUSINE" is a bedroom farce by the author of "Mabel's Room." It is beautifully played by a cast headed by John Cumberland and Doris Kenyon. Not for schoolgirls and grandmothers of either sex. Plymouth.

"BAB," with Helen Hayes, is a very dainty little comedy distinguished by brilliant acting on the part of the young leading woman and her supporting company. Hollis.

"HONEY GIRL" is the famous racing play "Checkers" set to music. It has some fine specialties and lots of pretty girls. Plenty of merriment, too. Park Square.

"THE OUTRAGEOUS MRS. PALMER," at the Arlington, offers Mary Young a wonderful opportunity which she accepts. It is an unusual and interesting play.

Echo From the Front

American officers who served during the war with the Canadian forces have bought all the seats for the performance of "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer" at the Arlington Theatre on Monday night, March 8, out of compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Craig, who have become proud of their own Craig production, and to Harry Grimble, the author of the popular romantic comedy.

During their war work in France the Craigs have brought [illegible] much with Canadians as well as Americans [illegible] they staged many famous plays [illegible] playing at least one of the comedies formerly given at the Arlington. Mr. Craig, though an Englishman, enlisted in the American army and went to France. While overseas he was called upon to make use of his professional talent writing and staging shows for the doughboys, and this work he continued for a time after returning to this country and getting his discharge from the army.

TREMONT THEATRE

Elsie Janis, delightful comedienne, will lay down a barrage of merriment at the Tremont Theatre Monday night, the first of a fortnight's engagement in this city. Assisted by "her gang," all of whom are ex-service men, she will appear in her very own bomb-proof revue in two acts without a title.

Miss Janis's revue is an informal one. The lighter and brighter side of the life "over there" with the American doughboy is amusingly portrayed, and those who believe that interest in the war is over and that as a background it has no place on the stage, will find their opinions entirely changed if they have the good fortune to see Elsie Janis and Her Gang.

For the stay-at-homes, the entertainment to be given here by Miss Janis and colleagues will afford an opportunity of seeing the "joy" side of the "big show" as revealed by the inimitable doughboy.

The "gang" will include Bill Kendell, Jerry Hoeckstra, Charlie Lawrence, Phil Deveau, Henry Janswicz and others, and among the flock of pretty girls in the suport of Miss Janis will be Marcelle D'Arville, Margaret Sousa, Lillian Cullen and Ruth Walls.

SHUBERT THEATRE

Girls are coming to town. They are the twenty artists' models of the Greenwich Village Follies, which opens a limited engagement of four weeks at the Shubert Theatre Monday night. They proved the most distinguishing feature of the Follies when it opened at the little Greenwich Village Theatre, New York, last Summer. They are a new type to the stage. The book and lyrics are by Philip Bartholomae and John Murray Anderson, and the music by A. Baldwin Sloane. Anderson produced and directed the piece, and is said to have set a new pace in the revue type. He calls it a revusical comedy, which in itself shows an aptitude for word-twisting that promises well for the whimsicality of the book. In the cast of principals Frances White, well known here, is the featured player. Then we have James Watts, evidently a female impersonator who makes one really laugh; Ted Lewis, the jazz king and his "laughing trombone"; Ada Forman and Al Herman. The piece comes here with a record of thirty-two weeks in New York.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Marguerita Sylva, one of the phenomenons of the American operatic stage, will be the headliner at Keith's Theatre next week. Amelia Stone, the popular musical comedy prima donna, and Armand Kaliz will be seen and heard in "A Song Romance," written by Edgar Allan Woolf and Armand Kaliz. It is handsomely staged and costumed. Menlo Moore and Macklin Megley will present a farce with music entitled "Once Upon a Time."

WALDRON'S CASINO

The most talked of and pre-eminently meritorious chorus girls are with the Roseland Girls' Burlesque show this season, which is coming to Waldron's Casino on Monday. The Roseland Girls' show has been known for the past number of seasons to have the best and the handsomest chorus girls showing the Columbia wheel. With an entirely new vehicle each successive season, with a new cast of comedians, singers and dancers, with new music and comedy galore, and an almost endless chain of funny situations and many novel surprises, it is winning favorable and unlimited patronage. A cast of unusual excellence is headed by that clever comedian, Harry Coleman, whose characterization of an old-time legitimate actor is considered the best ever portrayed; then there is that all-around comedian, Bert Lahr, who also is kept busy making the audience laugh; Kitty Mitchell, a comedienne who stands alone in burlesque.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Theda Bara will arrive in Boston tomorrow and appear at the Majestic Theatre in person Monday night as the star of "The Blue Flame."

Theda Bara's engagement will be limited to two weeks. The company supporting her is a notable one, enlisting such actors of attainment as Allan Dinehart, Donald Gallagher, DeWitt Jennings, Thais Lawton, Kenneth Hill, Harry Minturn, Henry Herbert, Helen Curray and many others. The play is in three acts and seven episodes and was written by George V. Hobart and John Willard, founded on Leta Vance Nicholson's play of the same title.

The story of "The Blue Flame," in which Theda Bara plays a dual role, concerns the experiments of John Farnum, an acknowledged agnostic and skilled student of electricity, who is convinced that man possesses all the powers attributed to the Deity and that he, himself, has the secret of restoring life to the dead.

GAYETY THEATRE

The name of Mollie Williams has always been a guarantee of the best that could be obtained in burlesque, and it may be said with truthfulness that Mollie Williams' Greatest Show which will be seen all next week at the Gayety Theatre, is the ultimatum of burlesque accomplishment. This famous star and feminine producer in presenting this season a production in two acts and four scenes, the burlettas being entitled, "Three Garden of Peaches" and "A Day at Coney Island". She plays an important part in the entire production and is assisted by a brilliant cast and by a chorus composed of such beauties as only Miss Williams could recruit from a large list of applicants.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"Oh, Boy!" is announced as the great musical event of the season at the Somerville Theatre the coming week. This will be the inaugural musical attraction at this popular playhouse and considerable interest is being shown by the many patrons who have formed attachments for the members of the company.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

"The Woman in Room 13," the great melodramatic sensation, will be offered the coming week by the Temple Stock Company at the Malden Auditorium. It is the combined effort of two of America's foremost playwrights, Samuel Shipman and Max Marcin, the former having been co-author of "Friendly Enemies" and the latter having written "Cheating Cheaters."

CHU CHIN CHOW

The second costume edition of Oscar Asche's Oriental spectacle, "Chu Chin Chow," coming direct from a second run at the Century Theatre, New York, will be the offering at the Boston Opera House for three weeks, beginning Monday evening, March 15.

This time, "Chu Chin Chow" will show a complete new scenic and costume version, the latter being an exact duplicate of the new dress given this attraction at His Majesty's Theatre, London, during August, when "Chu Chin Chow" entered the fourth consecutive year of playing in the English metropolis. Oscar Asche, the creator and author of this extravaganza of ancient Bagdad, celebrated the breaking of all known theatrical records by presenting his new London jubilee edition, which was immediately duplicated for F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest.

NEXT SYMPHONY PROGRAM

At the pair of Boston Symphony Concerts in Symphony Hall next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, March 5 and 6, Pierre Monteux will conduct Berlioz's noted "Fantastic" Symphony, which describes romantic episodes of his love, including his own execution. "The Pauses of Silence" by the young Italian revolutionary composer, Malipiero, which puzzled many and also delighted many when played by the orchestra last season, will be repeated at this pair of concerts. The closing numbers will be Borodin's pictorial Russian Sketch, "On the Steppes of Central Asia," and Wagner's Overture to "The Flying Dutchman."

THREE ARTS BALL

Great enthusiasm is being displayed over the pageant of the Hina Festival which is being produced under the direction of Micho Itow for the Three Arts Ball to be given on March 5 at the Copley-Plaza Hotel. Mr. Itow, who was one of the producers of the Greenwich Village Follies and the "Rose of China," has been in Boston the past week drilling fifty society girls who are taking part in this pageant. The Hina Festival occurs each year at this time in Japan and it is the ancient custom of the Japanese young ladies to attend this function with their dolls. At a certain point of the festivities each girl undresses her doll and immediately dresses it up again in new clothes which they have been working on during the past year.

Ted Lewis, the jazz king with the Greenwich Village Follies, has promised to come to the party with his band and a selected chorus from the Follies will offer part of the entertainment.

LOEW'S GLOBE THEATRE

William Russell and Edith Roberts will share honors on the program at Loew's Globe Theatre, Washington street, near Boylston, the first half of the coming week. Mr. Russell will be featured in "Shod With Fire," which portrays all the bravery and daring of a real Westerner and the grit and spunk of an Eastern girl.

GORDON AND SOCIALISM

Mr. F. G. R. Gordon, secretary of the Anti-Socialist League of America and one of the bitter foes of Bolshevism, will speak in Huntington Chambers Hall, No. 30 Huntington avenue, on Monday, March 1, at 3 p. m.

Mr. Gordon has been doing a wonderful work in Minnesota and the Northwest in combatting Socialism, and what he has to say is based entirely upon personal experience and intimate knowledge of the powers banded together to effect a revolution in this country.

A CARD OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

It becomes our pleasant duty to announce to the patrons of the Boston Opera House an unusual and wonderful treat which stands out prominently above all other shows of the theatrical year.

Last season all known theatrical records in this city were shattered to smithereens by the world's most beautiful production, "Chu Chin Chow," presented here by F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest.

Now we are proud and happy to announce that we have just contracted with Messrs. Comstock and Gest to bring "Chu Chin Chow" back for a return engagement, beginning Monday evening, March 15th.

This season Messrs. Comstock and Gest are bringing to Boston the second scenic and costume version of "Chu Chin Chow," an exact replica of the London Jubilee edition, now in its fourth year at His Majesty's Theatre.

Coming direct from a second run at the Century Theatre, N. Y., the immense size of this production will require the tremendous stage facilities of the Boston Opera House to be given in its entirety. It is now an assured fact that AT LAST Boston will see the WONDER spectacle in a theatre large enough to accommodate the thousands of disappointed theatre patrons who were unable to secure seats at the Shubert Theatre, last year; and on a stage ample for the display of FOURTEEN gorgeous scenes, the dazzling ballets, the Bagdad Mannequin Parade, and other features employing a company of more than 300 people.

Mail orders for all performances during the week of March 15th will now be received. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope for return of tickets, and enclose proper remittance. Prices, nights, 50c, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50; Saturday matinee, 50c to $2.50; Wednesday matinee, 50c to $2.00. (Plus 10% tax.)

If you have not yet seen "Chu Chin Chow," do not miss this last opportunity to see the world's wonder show in all its glory.

(Signed)

WHO WANTS TO BE A CENSOR?

If any theatre manager exhibits a motion picture which is indecent, wicked or insidiously immoral he can be arrested, fined and sent to jail. The law is plain. I may say that I never saw a motion picture of this character. I do not believe they make them. I have often seen photoplays so bad from an artistic point of view that somebody should go to jail, but unfortunately bad art is not against the law.

Since there are drastic laws for the protection of the public why should we have a censorship, which is merely a license to some egg-headed individual to run amuck in the industry and try to regulate it according to his prejudices?

If you want to study horrible results of censorship go to a motion picture house on Sunday and see the ruins of films which have been edited by the State police.

If you could get Diogenes, Socrates or old King Solomon to serve as a State picture censor things mightn't be so bad, but please consider the kind of individual who would take a job looking at motion pictures eight hours a day.

Consenting to serve on such a job would give a man's relatives an excuse for having him committed to some safe place.

Soda Fountains Very Busy.

For several days during the filming of Dorothy Gish's latest picture, "Mary Ellen Comes to Town," the whole company went on a still hunt for a soda water fountain. Not that prohibition had affected them thus, but Miss Gish has the role of dispenser of soda in the picture, and Elmer Clifton, the director, insisted that it be a real fountain, not a mere "prop."

But when he came to order one, he discovered that the demand already greatly exceeded the supply. Since delay during movie making means losses amounting to thousands of dollars daily, the search became quite animated. At last one that a storekeeper had purchased, but not yet installed, was located. But he wanted it himself. In desperation, Director Clifton Summoned Miss Gish and asked her to use her best persuasive powers, and it's proof that she's just as attractive off the screen as she is on, that the owner of the fountain soon agreed to loan it for the picture.

"Mary Ellen Comes to Town" will be shown all this week at the Modern and Beacon.

Room With the Green Door.

One of the most morbidly fascinating places in the world is "the room with the little green door" at Sing Sing prison. Despite the fact that this door spe ls tragedy for one in every party that passes through it, for it leads from the tier of cells where condemned prisoners are confined to the electrocution chair, the warden of the greatest prison in the United States receives hundreds of letters daily in which the writers demand, entreat, request or beg for permission to inspect it.

The mere mention of the death house at the New York State prison brings up recollections of cases of world-wide notoriety, to many it awakens memories of vengeance tinged with sadness, but to a few it brings almost painful stabs of joy. For, while it is essentially a place of tragedy, no greater joy can be experienced in life than that caused when a reprieve or a pardon is granted to a dear relative who is in a death cell.

It is such a reprieve as this which is a scene in "A Daughter of Two Worlds," starring Norma Talmadge, which will be shown at Gordon's Olympia next week.

Animal Play Moves

After a hectic week at Gordon's Olympia, when all attendance records were broken, and when the demand for seats was so great that double lines of people stretched from the box office windows alike to Beach street and to Essex street, "Back to God's Country," James Oliver Curwood's gigantically staged story of the Northland, has been moved to the Scollay Square Olympia for next week's showing.

Based on a theme that kindness to animals will be returned to the donor by those animals, the story depicts the life of Dolores Le Beau, a maid of the wilderness, whose kind treatment to forest beasts has taught them to love her.

The story then switches to the Arctic regions, where Wapi the Killer, a Great Dane dog, whose brutal side has been brought to the surface through the cruelty of owners, meets Dolores, who saves it from a beating and wins the animal's loyalty.

A race across the Arctic snows with a fugitive from justice in pursuit is about to be lost by Dolores and her helpless husband when Wapi the Killer summons all his strength and the hatred he has for those who mistreated him into a supreme effort, attacking the persecutor of his only friend in a fight that resulted in the death of four animals of great value.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

The headline attraction for the first half of the week will be the Primrose Minstrels with Mrs. George Primrose and vaudeville's greatest collection of burnt cork entertainers in "Minstrelsy A La Carte." Mary Haynes will also be present in her artistic song delineations—and she has won some reputation for her character work. She will be assisted by Dorothy Mack at the piano. Among other acts, Paul Brady will give a singing, talking and dancing skit; Arco Brothers in marvelous feats of equilibrism; and Mann and Mallory, with new line of chatter, patter and nonsense. The feature film announced is the latest of William Russell's screen successes, "Shod With Fire."

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQ.

"Should a Woman Tell?" a Screen Classics, Inc., all-star special photoplay, is to be shown at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

As the title implies, the picture is a dramatic depiction of the struggle within a woman's heart between her desire to confess her whole past to the man she loves and her fear that such confession may cost her his adoration.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR ARREST OF JACK DEMPSEY AND MANAGER

EVASION OF DRAFT IS CHARGED

Champion Is Stated to Have Made False Returns in His Questionnaire

San Francisco, Feb. 28.—Bench warrants for the arrest of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, and Jack Kearns, his manager, were issued by Judge William C. van Fleet immediately after indictments had been returned by the Federal grand jury.

Dempsey and Kearns are charged jointly in the indictment with the violation of Section 37 of the Criminal Code, which makes it a felony to conspire to commit an offence.

In a separate indictment, Dempsey is alleged to have violated the selective service law by evading military service by securing fraudulently a deferred classification.

Ball for Dempsey was fixed at $2,000. Kearns' bail is $1,000.

Champion Facing Three-Year Sentence

The maximum penalty for conspiracy charge is two years in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000. For violation of the selective service law the maximum punishment is one year in the county jail and $5,000 fine on each count of the indictment. There are three counts in the separate indictment against Dempsey and one count in the conspiracy indictment, though three overt acts are charged.

The indictments followed the appearance of Maxine Dempsey, divorced wife of the champion, before the Grand Jury. She testified and gave details of the alleged conspiracy to keep Dempsey from serving in the army. Her accusations were corroborated by letters written by Dempsey to her.

Though these letters played a prominent part in the investigation but one mention of them is made in the indictment, and that is a quotation in which Dempsey is said to have written to his wife: "Say, dear, if I ask you, would you, if I wanted you, swear to an affidavit that I was supporting you?"

Prosecution to Keep Letters Secret

The prosecution announced the letters would be kept secret until the trial.

In the joint indictment against Dempsey and Kearns it is alleged that the defendants entered into a conspiracy with "divers other persons" on May 31, 1917, to secure deferred classification for Dempsey and to keep him from military service. The conspiracy is still in effect, according to the indictment.

The first overt act charged is that Dempsey made false statements and claimed deferred classification, on appearing before Draft Board 13, on the ground that his father, mother, wife, widowed sister and her two children were dependent upon him for support, when he knew they were not.

Charged with Falsifying Quest'onnaire

The second overt act is that he sent a letter to the draft board on June 21, 1918, asking it to extend by two weeks the time for filing his questionnaire, on the ground that he would have to send to his wife, father and other dependents at Salt Lake City for signatures and affidavits.

He is then charged with appearing before the board and making a statement under oath as to the dependency of his relatives.

The final charge is that he wrote his wife asking her to swear to an affidavit that he was supporting her.

The separate indictment against Dempsey accuses him of wilfully, knowingly and feloniously evading and attempting to evade the requirements of the Selective Service act.

The warrants for the arrest of Dempsey and Kearns were given to the United States marshal and telegraphic warrants will be sent to Los Angeles if the accused do not surrender here.

BOBBY DYSON GETS BIG CHANCE TUESDAY NIGHT

Bobby Dyson, New England bantamweight champion, will receive his big chance in the ring when he clashes with Memphis Pal Moore in a twelve-round bout at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night under the direction of the Armory A. A. If Dyson wins from Moore he will be in a position to get matches with the world's leading bantamweights.

DARTMOUTH FENCERS WIN FROM TECH TEAM, 5-4

HARVARD CLUB SEXTET WINS

Get Jump on Dartmouth Club in First Game of Playoff Series for Title

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Over-confidence and an off-side goal all contributed to the 5 to 4 defeat of the Dartmouth Club by the Harvard Club in the first game of the play-off series of the Boston Hockey League, the winner of which is to be awarded a silver cup symbolic of the Boston hockey championship.

The over confidence and off-side goal came in the first period. As the result of the former, Percy, Doty and Hicks each tallied for the Harvard Club before the Green organization realized it was in a game of hockey. Then the tide of battle turned, but after the Dartmouth Club had peppered the Harvard Club net fifteen times, scoring but once in the fifteen, the puck was worked down the ice by Hicks of Harvard, whose shot was checked, but Bright of the Crimson, who was ten feet offside, poked it through Donahue's skates and Referee Rocque allowed the point to count.

Eaton and Murphy of the Green each tallied in the second session, bringing the score to 4 to 3. All the time an ever thickening layer of snow was being chipped by the skates of the two teams, and this the Pavilion management allowed to remain on the surface. It made carrying the puck almost impossible, and the Dartmouth Club's persistent rallies in the final period of play netted but one goal, which was matched by a point tallied by Doty of the Harvard Club, enabling the latter organization to win.

All-Stars to Play New Edinboro

The Boston All Stars should be well prepared for the crack New Edinboro team of Ottawa in the big hockey event tonight at the Ice Pavilion, Cambridge.

The New Edinboro team is in runner up position in the Ontario Hockey League, which ought to prove their class. W. A. Jolliet, who will lead New Edinboro from centre ice position tonight, is rated as one of the best amateurs in Canada. On his right wing he will have Boucher working with him. This lad is a brother of the famous defence man with the Ottawa pros.

Since Ralph Winsor has taken complete control of the playing end of the All Stars the local team has shown the hockey world that it is an outfit to be reckoned with. Winsor's masterful handling of the players on Wednesday night when the Stars defeated Pittsburgh made a hit with the fans.

FRIZETTI KNOCKS OUT CORBIEY IN 7TH ROUND

Jimmy Frizetti of Bridgewater started his career as a main bout boxer in auspicious style, knocking out Tommy Corbiey of Gloucester in the seventh round of the final fracas at the Commercial A. C. Up to the finishing punch the bout was very even. Young Dempsey won from Al Girard in ten rounds, Sailor Gardner disposed of George Harrison in two rounds, and Barney McAtee boxed a six-round draw with Young Smith.

Holy Cross Opens at Harvard

Holy Cross has been assigned the opening football date, September 25, at Harvard. At first it was intended to have the two teams play a double-header, but because of the objection of Coach Cleo O'Donnell of Holy Cross, only a single game will be played.

EVERYSAPP IN A SHOESTORE

OUTSIDE of goldfish and Greek dancers in a briar patch, shoes play an important part in politics. We don't know why Isadora Duncan pranced around with her toes rattling in the loose breezes some years ago. Isadora may have been shooting over the Kneipp cure, which consisted of flat-wheeling barehoofed over the morning dew, making motions like a cinnamon bear fighting bumble bees. The Kneipp system was a great cure for bunions, but bare dogs and a swallowtail coat never synchronized at a formal Newport affair. Besides, Isadora's costume kinda suggested that she also was trying to cure water on the knee, dislocation of the hip, curvature of the spine and tonsilitis.

THE Kneipp idea might have sprouted plenty if some shoe salesman hadn't planted poison ivy in all the parks. When a Kneipper's dogs started to break out in balloons like an old-fashioned chandelier he figured it was time to park the bunions back in the old brogans.

BUT the Greek hoppers never had more reason to go flatfooted than the public of today. Boots are now twenty bills an edition, and may go higher, all depending on the supply of paper and glue. When Everysapp wheels into a shoe garage nowadays he knows that he is going to be sent along for his bankroll. And sent along plenty! They don't even break out a pair of loaded dice to make you think that you are getting a chance. Do you remember when you gilded baby's first pair of shoes and put 'em on the mantelpiece? Remember how the gold sparkled when the sunlight bounced off the old man's bald knob and caromed off the gilt? Well, all shoes ought to be gold-leafed now, and the manufacturer would have enough left over to sew on diamond eyelets, with radium-tipped shoelaces.

IT used to be an event in an old-fashioned man's life when he spent more than two smackers for a set of toe scoops. Every time the old boy hooked a new brown derby or a new brace of dogs he would light out and get stewed. Some bartender would flatten his kelly with a bungstarter, and he generally lost the left shoe in a dumbwaiter when he forgot to jump with the rest of the passengers. More reason now to get soused when you mortgage the family sock for a pair of Congress gaiters, but there ain't any powders left. Everysapp goes into the shoestore and comes out sober. No oil left to pour on the troubled bunions.

WHEN Everysapp figures on purchasing a new outfit of groundgrabbers he looks over the "ads" to discover who's selling the fewest shoes for the most money. The minute he is inside the store he knows he is a kippered herring, so he spars with the doorknob for a couple of rounds. Then he peels off the old boots and counts the holes in Everysapp's socks. There should be no false modesty between Everysapp and a shoe clerk. A guy up on the ladder is hollering something about Albert, Billie, Charlie, Daniel and Eddie. Which sounds like a squawk for help, but means the different sizes in dogs—A, B, C, D, E. Everysapp's dancing partner is Eddie, which is the largest width in boots; but when the clerk tries 'em on Everysapp's five-toed hams they both figure that Eddie should have been twins.

AS there ain't no Zachariahs or Yoricks in stock, the clerk digs down into the ash barrel and comes up with the old canoe-last shoe. This last is shaped just like a Hometown canoe, and a guy walking in 'em thinks he's riding a hobbyhorse. As he can't etherize Everysapp, he walks up with the canoes under his coat and snaps 'em on sudden. No ambush is successful without the element of surprise. The canoe boot is a great shoe for kicking dogs with, but ain't much use to a guy who doesn't know how to use a pair of paddles. If the canoe bunion squeezers don't mix with Everysapp's exempt arches the clerk holds a consultation with the cash register and breaks out the last thing in diseases of the shoe. This is the rocking-chair last, and science has been unable to segregate the germ that causes it.

THE rocking chair is something like the canoe last—but more so. You can't walk in 'em. You just stand still and rock like a guy drinking your health in wood alcohol. They're long and narrow; and you could rock yourself to sleep if it weren't for the fact that they also are built to qualify you to join the Boy Corn Raisers of Ohio.

EVERYSAPP finally buys a set of patent leather shoes that look just right when you are sitting down, and feel great when you take 'em off and give your dogs a chance to swell up. The clerk grabs Everysapp's eighteen dollars and Everysapp writes him out three checks for the other seventy-five cents.

THE company gives Everysapp a shoehorn free, which turns out to be the most important part of the shoes. He spends the rest of his life getting into those dogs and escaping from 'em again. He raises about three bunions on each toe, which is a quorum anywhere, and when his corns start hurting the old boy knows there are thirty rainstorms on the way.

THE slogan of all shoe stores is: "We want you to leave satisfied." Which is safe enough, as if you hung around more than a year they would raise the rent on you.

HARRY DAVIS MAY COACH WILLIAMS NINE

Boxing at Holy Cross

The Holy Cross students will give a public exhibition in Worcester on St. Patrick's Day night.

DOWNES OUT TO BEAT YOUNG BLADES TONIGHT

Cleveland Johnny Downes will try to show that the twelve-round decision he received over Young Blades of Woonsocket last Tuesday evening was a proper one. At the Commonwealth Club tonight Downes intends to make the affair a decisive one by stopping the rugged Rhode Island battler before the limit. Blades is just as confident he will put over a haymaker, so the spectators are assured of witnessing a bout which promises to be even better than the last performance.

JOHN LESTER JOHNSON BACK SEEKING BOUTS

John Lester Johnson, the colored heavyweight, is back on the job after a short stay in the hospital, and looking for more bother. The colored boy names Clay Turner and Larry Williams as two of his favorites for a little pastime in the ring.

BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH TAKES TRACK MEET

The Boston College High track team proved too strong for Newton High in the met held in the East Armory and won, 43 to 34. The defeat of Frank Rooney of B. C. High in the 600-yard run was the big surprise of the meet. It was the first time he had been beaten this season.

RED SOX START FOR OZARKS

Everyone in Party Eager to Reach Somewhere Snow Is Not Covering Ground

By JACK CONWAY.

On Board the Red Sox Special, South Station, Feb. 28.

Dear Gill:

You can tell the Salvation Army lassies and Kayo Muggsy that it is about as tough to get off to Hot Springs with the Red Sox as it is to have some kind relative turn his checks in at the bone yard and leave you a bundle of dough just as you are about to be embraced by a flock of sheriffs. Of course, Gill, I know you don't know anything about sheriffs and such things, but then maybe you have seen some of these birds in the movies.

There is usually not much to a sheriff if you up and Muggsy him on the jaw, but for some reason or other once he gets you under the hypnotic influence of his badge you feel much like the gay young bachelor does after he has paid his income tax.

As I wait for the arrival of Stuffy McInnis, Cuddy Murphy, Larry Graver and sundry war correspondents, I can't help but think of Raftus. He's one of the kids who used to chase flies in the outfield for the Red Sox back in the days when Tris Speaker, Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper cared for the outposts on the Boston line. Just before the team would start on its barnstorming trip North, Raftus would present each member of the Red Sox party with a bunch of violets which he had picked himself.

Hard to Leave Wintry Boston Behind

Raftus won't be at Hot Springs to greet us, as he's since been called by the Great Umpire. The violets, however, will be blooming, while the grass will be green and the sun shining most of the time. It will be hard, of course, to break oneself away from the charms of the Elevated car service, the soothing effect of the coffee houses along Summer street, futile efforts to reach Jamaica Plain before they drydock the district at midnight and other Winter sports of the city.

Don't know how successful a Spring trip will be without Babe Ruth. The batterer was always an idol in the South. The straight ball pitching at the training camps has always been easy for Ruth. How the old boy liked to wallop the horsehide a couple of miles as a flock of society dames looked on in wonderment!

Remember one day at Tampa last Spring after Ruth had knocked a home run off Joe Bush. A pretty social belle was telling Babe how wonderful he was to be able to hit a ball so far.

First Box Score the Real News

"That's nothing," says Babe. "We're only practicing down here. Come up to Boston during the season and I'll knock a couple of real home runs for you any day you care to drop out to the ball park."

I don't know, Gill, whether all this had anything to do with the Red Sox training trip of 1920, but it's helping like anything to fill space. Then, too, there are mostly newspaper men in the advance party, and you know that Happy always claimed that we newspaper guys hate to talk about ourselves.

I suppose I might say that by the time the Red Sox special reaches St. Louis it will be loaded down with star players. I think, though, the fans will be more interested in the first box scores from the South than in anything that can be said now.

Whole Lot of Sunshine Is Needed

Everybody in the party is eager to get away from this land of ice and snow. I feel like the rest of the band on the ice and snow stuff, but how about Memphis Pal Moore and Bobby Dyson at the Armory Club next Tuesday night and Muggsy and Kloby at the Fenway Club a week from today? They may have sunshine and violets and green grass in the Ozarks, but it would take a lot of those things to cause me to make an even swap for those two fights.

Don't know how all my friends are going to see the big battles from press stand seats, but I suppose somebody has to stop a few jolts now and then beside the boxers. I met Happy as I was coming into the station, and he naturally asked for some tickets for the big shows. I told him to drop around and see me Monday night and I'd fix him up provided he had his war tax with him. I'll try and think of Hap for a few minutes Monday p. m. when I'm somewhere in Missouri.

I hope that Alex McLean, Eddie Mack, Jackie Williams, Reuben Morse, Jim McDonald, Henry Myers and the rest of the noble managers of box fighters continue hurling challenges while I'm gone, for this may help to develop a couple of new champions. And the ring game in New England needs classy talent just as badly as the Red Sox need Babe Ruth and some of the other stars who were let go for financial considerations.

Will close now, Gill, as the old locomotive is beginning to get restless.

STAR ATHLETES IN BIG MEET

Cornell Rules Favorite to Land Honors in the Triangular Events

The double-header attraction at the Mechanics Building tonight, the Harvard, Dartmouth, Cornell triangular meet and the New England Championships, will bring to a close one of the most successful track seasons for many years.

More than one athlete who will represent America at the Olympic games will be rounding the corners ingtonight and the affair will be a fitting one on which to bring down the curtain on the Winter track season.

Cornell is the slight favorite in the triangular meet. Coach Jack Moakley has entered seventy-two men and among them several collegiate record holders.

One of the features of the night will be the hurdle event with Earl J. Thompson of Dartmouth, Walker Smith and Jack Watt of Cornell and C. C. Krogness of Harvard topping the timbers.

Captain O'Connell of Harvard, the intercollegiate champ, will start in the mile and should have but little trouble winning, although Tom McDermott of Cornell is considered a dangerous man over this route.

Walter Whalen, another intercollegiate champion, will try to lower the record of Sam Lawrence in the high jump. The record now is 6 feet 4¼ inches. In the B. A. A. games Whalen did 6 feet 3⅝ inches.

All the prominent athletes of New England have entered in the championship races, among whom are: Jake Driscoll, H. C. Cutbill, Walter Whalen, Dave Caldwell, William MacMahon, John Lawler, Henry Minot, Earl Dudley, Tom Dignan and Garvin Bawden.

NEW YORK BASEBALL CLUBS ON WAY SOUTH

New York, Feb. 28.—The advance guard of the New York Giants is on the way to the San Antonio training camp, piloted by Christy Mathewson.

Manager Huggins of the Yankee left for Jacksonville with "Babe" Ruth, Thormanlen, Mogridge, Bodie, De Vitalis, Smallwood, Murphy, Geiser and Trainer Al Woods.

BRAVES' CHANCE IS RIGHT NOW

Team Has Excellent Opportunity to Become Favorite With Boston Fans

By NICK FLATLEY

If the luck the Braves have in getting out of the ice and snow bound North just now keeps up through the season, the team will undoubtedly battle its way into a cut of the world's series profits. The boys are surely getting a good start, and manager Stallings has always claimed that with a favorable jump he could take any kind of a team creditably through a campaign.

So now it seems to be distinctly up to George to come through. If he doesn't, it looks as if the Brave fans during the Summer would pay most of their attention and spare coin to gollof and the bike races. Those Braves have rattled close to the foundation for so long that their most ardent admirers have had enough. With no signs of great upbuilding on the part of the deadly rivals, the Nationals have a rare chance to hop into the van of the popularity league hereabouts. And both Stallings and Grant realize this and have signed up all the loose youngsters in sight.

Party Leaves from South Station Tomorrow

The Boston end of the outfit departs tomorrow afternoon from the South Station, Horace Ford, infielder, Frank Fahey and Cy Morgan, pitchers, being the athletic end of the party. Eayers, former Brown star, will be collected at Providence, while Captain Rabbit Maranville hops on at New Haven.

Dick Rudolph and Hugh McQuillen, pitchers, enlist at the Penn Station, Sunday night, and a bunch of aspirants tack on at Washington. The first practice will be on Wednesday morning, though there will be a conversational workout in Columbus, Ga., Tuesday p. m., when all the heroes will be present. As in other years, Stallings will have his flock work twice daily, playing intra-city games as soon as the wings get thawed out.

Pitcher Keating Released to Los Angeles Team

Pitcher Ray Keating, one of the Brave spitballers, has been sold to the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League. Keating was a failure with the club last season, though great things had been expected of him. He didn't have much heart in his work and failed to correct a lack of control that marred his best efforts. As the moist delivery is on the skids, the Brave management didn't consider Ray worth taking another chance on.

All the Braves on the list have been signed, with the exception of one pitcher. He is holding out for more money, but will be in the fold shortly, as ultimata and things like that have been shot at him, along with the club's highest bid. As he wasn't exactly a howling success last season, he hasn't got much ground for kicking.

NEALE BALL TO PLAY WITH NEW HAVEN CLUB

New Haven, Feb. 28.—Neale Ball, former Cleveland and Boston star, is signed to play second base for the New Haven club of the Eastern League. He gained distinction several years ago by making an unassisted triple play.

The Eastern League will convene in this city next week to make final preparations for the opening of the season. The question of whether Providence will be carried or dropped will be threshed out.

NEW ZEALAND SCENE OF DAVIS CUP MATCHES

According to advices from Australia, the challenge round in the Davis Cup international tennis matches of 1920 will be played in New Zealand and not in Australia, as in recent years.

While no reason is given for this change of venue, the belief is that the shift has been made with the idea of developing greater interest in lawn tennis in New Zealand.

PRINCETON SIGNS COACH ROPER FOR TWO YEARS

Princeton, Feb. 28.—William W. Roper, head coach of the Princeton football team, has been re-engaged for the next two seasons, according to an announcement by the board of athletic control.

"Red" Gennert, whose freshman team went through the 1919 season with a clean slate, also will be back next season as coach.

THIS is the anniversary of the discovery, in 1826, of Biela's comet by William von Biela. Its periodic return was then a little over six years. In 1852 it was in two parts, more than 1,500,000 miles apart, and since then it has not been seen, probably having been broken up.

Mechanical Prayers

MECHANICAL devices for repeating prayers are familiar in the East, but they are outdone in saving of labor by the "prayer flags" of Tibet. These are suspended on long lines, and while moving in the breeze are supposed to be recording prayers.

As a Woman Thinketh

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Man of It

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

OF course, WOMAN has always been the Human Paradox——

The baffling, incomprehensible, inscrutable Riddle-of-the-Species!

And yet—here are just a few things that every woman would like to know about a MAN!

Can anybody tell——

Why he always leaves a teacup, a vase, a priceless piece of bric-a-brac, and even his favorite meerschaums on the exact EDGE of a table?

Why he will spend three-quarters of a perfect day looking for something that he has secreted "for safekeeping"—and the other quarter trying to prove that he didn't put it there?

Why it annoys him to be called a "saint," bores him to be called a "good man," but delights and flatters him to be called a "devil"?

Why he can remember the exact date on which he caught a certain six-pound bass, and the precise minute, day, hour and year on which he made the last hole with a certain marvelous stroke—yet cannot for the life of him carry the date of his wedding anniversary in his head for twelve whole months?

Why he will run away from a woman he loves for fear of becoming entangled—and run after a woman he doesn't love, until she trips him up and marries him?

Why he would rather drop his cigar ashes on the prayer rug, in the baby's milk, behind the piano, on the sensitive plant, in his coffee cup—or anywhere on earth than into the ashtray at his elbow.

Why he will work like a demon for six months in order to pay off a debt, and then stick the check in his pocket and forget to mail it for a whole week?

Why he will forgive a woman for making a fool of herself over any man on earth—except himself?

Why he considers that before marriage a woman's love must be cultivated and cherished like an orchid—but that after marriage it will flourish like an air plant on her own imagination:

Why he will nonchalantly pass over one nice girl after another, who might make him perfectly happy—and marry the first one who demonstrates the power to make him suffer?

Why he will cheerfully pay the price of gasoline—yet wail to heaven that it is ruining him when she throws out one of his frayed cravats or the remains of his favorite shoes?

Why he will marry a girl for her "adorable little hands" and expect her to use them for peeling potatoes? Or for her splendid mind, and expect her to concentrate it on a bread pudding? Or for her brilliant conversation and expect her to use it all up before he comes home evenings?

Why he will slave for a woman, suffer for her, die for her—do anything on earth for her except come home in time for dinner, go to bed at a reasonable hour, and be pleasant at breakfast, when that's all in the world she needs in order to make her perfectly happy?

Why he will go to the ends of the earth to prove his love for a woman—and yet bite his tongue out before he will TELL her how much he loves her?

Why—— but, oh, well!

That's just the man of it!

April Folly

By Cynthia Stockley

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"April Folly," soon to be seen in leading motion picture theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production, released through Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft picture, under direction of Robert Z. Leonard. Scenario by Adrian Johnson.

"WHY, Kenna, I told you everything there was to know. Besides it was in the papers."

"No, Kerry; you told me something, and the papers told me something. Everything can be related only by one person." Dramatically he fixed his glance upon that person.

There was no mistaking the challenge. April found courage to return his glance, but her eyes looked like the eyes of a drowning girl. At the sight of them two people were moved to action. Belle Helene rose and slipped from the room. Sarle also rose, but it was to seat himself again by April's side on the lounge.

"I don't understand what all this is about," he said quietly. "But it seems a good time for you to know, Kenna, and you, Clive, that we"—he took April's hand in his—"are engaged and going to be married as soon as possible."

Kenna looked at him with pity and tenderness.

"You had better let her speak, old man. It is time you were undeceived."

"Be careful, Kenna!"

"My dear Kerry, do you suppose that it gives me any pleasure to cause you pain or to distress this charming lady? Only my friendship for you"——

"I can dispense with it," Sarle curtly interrupted.

"Ah! That's the way when woman steps in." Kenna's lips twisted in a bitter grin. Sarle turned to April.

"Diana—"

"That is the very crux of the matter," rapped out Kenna. "She is not Diana."

"What, in God's name"—began Sarle.

"What I want to know," pursued Kenna sombrely, "is, why, if Diana Sandilands jumped overboard, does this girl go masquerading under her title?"

A Blow to Sarle

"Are you mad?" Sarle stared from one to the other. "Haven't you known her all your life? Did you not meet as old friends?"

Kenna shrugged.

"I never set eyes on her until that day at the Mount Nelson. She was a friend of yours, and chose to call herself by the name of a friend of mine, and I humored her and you. But the thing has gone too far. After inquiries among other passengers, I have realized the truth—that it was Diana who"—A spasm of pain flickered across his melancholy eyes.

Sarle, in grave wonder and hurt, turned to April.

"It is true!" she cried bitterly, pierced to the heart by his look. "Diana is drowned. I am a masquerader."

Even if she had been nothing to him, he could not have remained unmoved by the desperate pleading of her eyes. But he happened to love her with the love that casts out fear and distrust and all understanding.

"I am the real April Poole," she said, broken, but resolute that at least there should be no further mistake. He gave her one long look, then lifted her hand and held it closer. The gesture was for all the world to see. But Kenna had not finished with her.

"You will allow a natural curiosity in me to demand why you should wear the name and retain the possessions of my friend, Lady Diana Sandilands?" he asked, dangerously suave.

A Merited Rebuke

Then Olive sprang full-armed to the fray.

"And you will allow a natural curiosity in me to demand why you should harry my friend like this—browbeat her for a folly entered into mutually by two girls and ending in tragedy through no fault of hers?"

The painter's eyes burned with a blue-fire, bleak as her own mountain-tops. It was as though Joan of Arc had come to the rescue and was sweeping the room with valiant sword. Even Kenna was slightly intimidated.

"That is her story," he muttered.

"You fool, Ronald Kenna," she said gently, "can't you look in her face and see there is no touch of treachery or darkness there? Thank God, Kerry is not so blind!" There was a deep silence. Then she said, "Listen, then, to my story," and she repeated the facts April had told her, but as April could never have told them, so profound was her understanding of the motives of the two girls in exchanging identities, so tender her treatment of the wayward Diana. Truly, this "unfulfilled woman" was greater in the width and depth of her soul than many of those to whom life has given fulfilment of their dreams.

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE hall clock striking twelve brought Daniel Rodney and his caller to an appreciation of the flight of time. They had been talking so earnestly that they had forgotten how near the noon hour was.

"Hugh will be expecting Doris," the man said. "Poor lad! My heart sinks like lead when I realize what her absence must mean to him."

"But he shall not know about it," Ruth reminded him. "Just try to keep that thought in mind, and we will be able to carry our plan through successfully."

"You will go to him now?" the father asked.

"Yes, I will go to him now."

"Laura is expecting to see you before you leave. She is up and about her room."

"I wonder," Ruth hesitated, "if she would mind deferring our talk together until tomorrow—or until you have explained things to her? I would rather not discuss our plans further, or," with an apologetic smile, "listen to any more protests."

She was afraid she had vexed her companion when she noted the stern lines settle about his mouth. But his next speech freed her from this fear.

"You shall make no explanations to her—or any more to me—my dear. When one reflects on what you are sacrificing for us, the least we can do is to spare you any strain in the way of argument and inquiries.

"Have no uneasiness as to Laura. I will talk with her, and tomorrow when you come she will be accustomed to the new arrangement and will be so grateful that she will aid and abet you in your undertaking. You can count on us, my child."

"Thank you!" she smiled up into his face. "Now if Hugh is ready to see me I will go up to him. I must have a plain talk with him, too—so that he will make it possible for me to carry out my intentions."

She did not tell Mr. Rodney what she was going to say to Hugh, and her father did not ask. He had become very confident of the wisdom of this young creature's judgment.

A Difficult Position

Her faith in her own wisdom was not as strong as that of Hugh's father. She was painfully aware of this lack as she paced the drawing-room when Mr. Rodney had gone up to prepare his son for the visit from the girl he believed to be his betrothed.

Ruth's will was strong, and she would carry through anything she attempted—always supposing that other people played into her hand.

That was a big "if," yet she would not let it terrify her.

Her only safety lay in taking each minute as it came. She must not anticipate.

In a surprisingly short time Daniel Rodney returned to the drawing room.

"I found Hugh standing in front of the mantel-place," he announced, "his fingers on the hands of the clock, endeavoring to learn just what time it was. He had heard twelve strike and was sure that at least a quarter of an hour had elapsed since then. I assured him that it was only five minutes past noon, and that you—I mean Doris—was here.

"I did not lie, for I said 'One of the dearest girls in the world is waiting downstairs for my permission to come up and see you.' His face brightened as if a great light had been flashed upon it. It brought a lump to my throat."

"'I knew I could count on her,' he exclaimed. 'Oh, Dad—isn't she wonderful?'

"I had no difficulty in putting an abundance of fervor into my voice when I answered, 'Yes, son.'

"I wanted to add, 'God bless her!' but I was afraid my earnestness would start him to wondering."

"And it would also be undeserved," the girl said quickly. "Please do not place me upon a pedestal nor praise me for doing that which I really want to do, dear Mr. Rodney."

No One With Him

The man and girl went up the broad stairway side by side.

"There is nobody in the library now with Hugh, is there?" Ruth murmured.

Her companion shook his head. "No, he is entirely alone."

"I would rather have it that way," she rejoined, too softly for her voice to be heard a few feet away—"at least until I get accustomed to my new part. I am not a very good actress yet—and I would prefer playing to an audience of one instead of to others who might be more critical."

"I understand thoroughly, and will promise you that until you want a larger audience, you shall have a solitude a deux," he smiled into her anxious face.

"Soon—if all goes well—I am sure I shall not mind, but will welcome the presence of the rest of you," she said.

"All will go well, my dear—never doubt it. Such courage and sacrifice as yours must succeed," he replied.

"And now—here we are at the head of the stairs. I am going on to acquaint Laura with our plan of campaign."

Then, as he parted from Ruth he spoke loudly enough for Hugh to hear him in the library.

"Doris, my dear, I will stop in Laura's room to see how she is progressing, then will go down to the office. Tomorrow you may see Laura yourself.

"By the way, you and Hugh would best decide when you are to come to him again. Good morning!"

The Cinema Murder

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"DOUGLAS! It isn't you, Douglas! It isn't you really?"

"I wish you'd all leave off staring at me as though I were a ghost," the other man answered, almost pettishly. "I am Douglas Romilly, right enough. You needn't look in such a blue funk, Philip," he went on, his fingers mechanically rearranging his collar and tie, which Beatrice had disarranged. "I served you a beastly trick and you went for me. I should have done the same, if I'd been in your place. On the other hand, I rather turned the tables on you by keeping quiet. Perhaps it's up to me to explain."

Elizabeth, feeling her way by the mantelpiece, came to Philip's side. His arm supported her, holding her as though in a vise.

"Is that your cousin?" she whispered hoarsely. "Is that Douglas Romilly. Is he alive, after all?"

Philip had no words, but his face spoke for him. Then they both turned to listen. The newcomer had dragged a chair towards him and was leaning over the back of it. He addressed Philip.

"We met, as you know, on the canal path that beastly afternoon," he began. "I was jolly well ashamed of myself for having made love to Beatrice, and all the rest of it, and you were mad with rage. We had a sort of tussle and you threw me into the canal. It was a nasty dark spot just underneath the bridge.

"I expect I was stunned for a moment, but it was only for a moment. I came to long before I choked, and when I remembered your grip upon my throat, I decided I was safer where I was. I could swim like a duck, you know, and though it was filthy water I took a long dive. When I came up again—gad, what disgusting water it was!—you were tearing off like a creature possessed. That's the true history of our little fracas."

"But afterwards?" Philip asked wonderingly. "What happened afterwards?"

"You just tell them all about it," Beatrice ordered him sternly. "Go on, Douglas."

Douglas' Story

"Well, you see," Douglas Romilly continued, "I was just going to scramble out on to the bank when my brain began to work, and I swam slowly along instead. You see, just then I was in a devil of a mess. I'd spent a lot of money, and though I'd kept the credit of the firm good, I knew that the business was bust, and the one thing I was anxious about was to get off to America without being stopped. I've explained this all to Beatrice, and why I didn't send for her before.

"Anyway, I swam along until I met with an old barge. I climbed in and got two of the choicest blackguards you ever saw to let me spend an hour or two in their filthy cabin and to keep their mouths closed about it. Fortunately, I had another pocketbook, with sufficient to satisfy them and keep me going. Then I borrowed some clothes and came out to America, steerage. I had no difficulty in getting my money, as I had a couple of pals in Lynn whom I had fixed things up with before I started.

"They came and identified me as Merton Ware, and we all three started in business together as the Ford Boot and Shoe Manufacturing Company at Lynn in Massachusetts. Incidentally, we've done all right. Heaps more, of course, but that's the pith of it. As for the body that was fished out of the canal, if you make inquiries, you'll find there was a tramp missing, a month or so before."

Began to Sob

Elizabeth had begun to sob quietly. Philip, who was holding her tenderly in his arms, whispered unheard things into her ears.

"So now, Mr. Dane," she jeered, "what about your little errand? I hope this will be a lesson to you not to come meddling in other people's affairs."

Dane turned to the man who had brought this bombshell into their midst.

"Do you swear that you are Douglas Romilly?" he asked.

"I not only swear it but I can prove it, if you'll come along with me to Murray's," he answered. "My partner's there, waiting supper, and another man who has known me all his life."

The detective glanced interrogatively towards Philip.

"That is my cousin, Douglas Romilly," the latter pronounced.

Dane took up his hat.

"Mr. Merton Ware," he said, "or Mr. Philip Romilly, whichever you may in future elect to call yourself, you may not believe it, but the end of this affair is an immense relief to me.

He passed out. They heard the sound of his footsteps and his companion's, as they crossed the corridor and rang for the lift. Speech was a little difficult. It was still Beatrice who imposed conviction upon them.

"I was seated in the box," she explained, "when Philip went round to see you, Elizabeth. I had been looking down into the stalls to find Martha, and all of a sudden I saw Douglas there. He, too, was staring at me. Of course, I thought it was some extraordinary likeness, but, whilst I was clutching at the curtain, he stood up and waved his hand.

ROSALIND

IT is popular belief, not fact, that spreads the use of a name and the only available explanation for Rosalind is that it was invented by Shakespeare especially for the lovely heroine of "As You Like It."

There is no other record of its history. Rose, of course, as all know, and there is a Spanish word "linda," which means "fair woman" and comes from the German "lind" signifying "lithe." So, etymologists have it, that Shakespeare, seeking a name for his lithe young masquerader, coined the graceful Rosalind.

Rose appears first as Rohais or Roesia, from the French and Latin of "hros," meaning fame. In England, the first Rohais was the wife of Gilbert of Gaunt. Roese de Lucy was the name of the wife of Fulbert de Dover in the time of Henry II.

The Normans carried it to Ireland, where Rose is a favorite among peasants. In Sicily, Rosalia, known as the "darling of each heart and eye," dedicated herself to a hermit life in a mountain grotto and won a saintly reputation.

The name took the form of Rosalie in France. It was there that St. Dominic arranged a series of devotions by means of telling beads upon a string. These formed the rosarium, or rose garden, or freely translated, delights of devotion. The Rosarium has a day to itself in the Roman calendar and may possibly have named the transatlantic saint, Rosa di Luina, which gave rise to Rosita.

Switzerland calls her Rosel, and France Rosine or Rosette. In England she is Rosanne, sometimes Rosabella, meaning "beautiful rose." From Italy comes Rosina and Rosetta. A more rare, but no less charming interpretation, is Rosealba, signifying "white rose."

It is a curious fact that the color "rose" and the name are irrevocably associated. There are red roses and white roses and yellow roses in Nature, yet the real rose is the deep pink, and the bearer of the name or any of its derivatives should surround herself with these flowers if she would wish the psychic atmosphere which their quality insures. Her jewel is that rare beautiful gem, the flame-hearted ruby.

It denotes pride and haughtiness and appoints Tuesday as the fortunate day for its wearer and 3 the lucky number.

The best poetic tribute to Rosalind is paid by Shakespeare through the verses of Orlando.

"From the east to western Ind,
No jewel is like Rosalind.
Her worth, being mounted on the wind,
Through all the world bears Rosalind.
All the pictures, fairest lined,
Are but black to Rosalind. * * *

Helen's cheek, but not her heart;
Cleopatra's majesty,
Atalanta's better part,
Sad Lucretia's modesty,
Thus Rosalind of many parts
By heavenly synod was devised;
Of many faces, eyes, and hearts,
To have the touches dearest prized."

Wife Who's Efficient

By Loretto C. Lynch

"IF only I had a regular job where one could see the results of one's labor, I would not mind, but I am a housewife and—well, I don't know—my work never shows." So quoth a housewife quite weary of her job. And she wanted me to suggest something that she might do that would make some showing.

And yet in this case it is not a question of money. This woman has a liberal allowance for her household needs, but she does her own work. It may be that this woman is tired. It may be she needs a rest. After a rest work seems so easy. Haven't you noticed what new interest life takes on after even a short vacation?

On the way to a small town in Arizona a few weeks ago I met a most interesting woman. She was a housewife, but all she had was a four-room shack. Perhaps you wouldn't have liked to live there. Needless to say, her husband was not rich. He works in the mines for a comfortable wage. She had three little children. But I'll let her tell you.

"I just got where I hated the house—the mop, the dish cloth, the broom. I couldn't speak civilly to my husband. I was beginning to give the children whippings for things they never did."

"But you look so amiable," I interrupted. "I can't imagine you as you describe. Just what caused the change?" And then she told me the secret. The husband saw she was at the end of her nerves, for she had nursed her aged mother until her recent death. She had had an unusually hard year financially.

Then the husband decided to bring her back to the sweet little woman he had married. And he sent her to the home of one of his relatives about fifty miles farther west.

Now she was coming back with restored nerves—a new viewpoint. And she had learned so much in this other woman's home. The relative she visited had a regular system in her home. She was a poor woman, recognized the fact, and lived absolutely within her means. She washed simple clothing. She cooked and served simple meals. She got out into the fresh air a couple of hours each day. And her visitor profited, indeed.

DANGER FOLLOWS INFLUENZA

Rebuilding Health After Any Illness

Getting Well Means Gaining Strength—A Wholesome Tonic

The getting-well stage of grip, pneumonia or other illness is the most dangerous of all because the body, weakened by the disease, is wide open to attacks of other lurking germs.

That is why all the organs of the body must be kept in their best working order, not only to drive out the poison left by the disease, but that the patient shall regain strength as soon as possible to avoid further attacks resulting from the poisons in the system.

As a means toward good health after any illness Father John's Medicine builds up the body because it is all pure wholesome nourishment and free from opium, morphine, chloroform or other poisonous drugs or alcohol. Father John's Medicine has had 60 years' success for colds and throat troubles, coughs and sore throats, and as a tonic and body builder.

PROVES THE TRUTH

One of the best known professional men in New York (his name will be given on request) says: "After an acute attack of typhoid pneumonia, I had a racking cough and lost twenty pounds in eleven days. I never was so completely run-down in my life. I was about to go to a hospital when I began to take Father John's Medicine, which, after I had taken it faithfully, restored me to sound health. I regained flesh that I had lost and have since been as well as ever in my life. I have since learned that my physician has been in the habit of prescribing Father John's Medicine in such cases."

PREVENT INFLUENZA

If you are "run down" or out of condition, if sluggish bowels have allowed poisonous impurities to accumulate in your system you are liable to suffer severely with the grip. Dr. True's Elixir, the famous household remedy of 69 years' reputation, will help ward off the grip or make an attack light and easily thrown off. Why? Because is a vegetable tonic that puts the system in good condition, relieves constipation, stimulates the appetite and strengthens the digestive powers. It can do no harm. A tonic—not a stimulant. No reaction. Ask your druggist for it, or write DR. J. F. TRUE & CO., Auburn, Maine.

CUTICURA HEALS
BABY'S ECZEMA

In Pimples Over Face. Skin Sore and Red. Scaled Over.

"My baby had eczema very badly on her face and it made her very troublesome. It took the form of pimples nearly all over her face, and the skin was sore and red. She tried to scratch which caused a discharge of a watery substance. This spread and then would scale over causing disfigurement. She was very restless, and kept us awake.

"Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment which entirely healed her." (Signed) Mrs. Frank S. Fowler, Rt. 5, So. Willow St., Manchester, N.H.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are all you need for all toilet uses. Bathe with Soap, soothe with Ointment, dust with Talcum.

Woman Hits Film Bill

Mrs. Marcellus Ayer, prominent Boston club woman, declared today that no censorship can be established by law to decide in advance what may or may not be lawfully printed or published, in attacking the Motion Picture Censorship Bill now before the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs.

Mrs. Ayer is a strong opponent of the bill for a State censorship. She declared that such a censorship would be a blow at free speech.

BAY STATE ALWAYS FAIR.

She stated that Massachusetts, founded on the principle of liberty, had always been foremost in preserving that right.

"There is a government of free speech and a free press," said Mrs. Ayer in pointing out her position relative to the censorship.

"That is the corner-stone of free government. The phrase the press includes all methods of expression by writing or pictures. In past ages there were censorships to decide what might be published, or even believed. Every Christian denomination has at one time or another been subjected to such censorship. The few were very anxious not to give freedom of speech or of the press.

PRESENT LAWS PROTECT.

"Our laws forbid the publication of any libelous, obscene, indecent, immoral, or impure picture or reading matter. Is not that enough? If anyone does this he commits a criminal offence and may be punished therefor.

"If this ordinance is legal, then a similar ordinance in respect of the newspapers and the theatres generally would be legal. Are you of opinion that you have any such power as that? If so, you should probably begin with the newspapers and the so-called high-class theatres. Once revive the censorship and there is no telling how far we may carry it. These moving picture shows are attended by the great bulk of the people, many of whom cannot afford to pay the prices charged by the theatres. They are a solace and an education to them."

BEST PEOPLE FILM FANS.

"The truth is that the good, moral people who go to these moving picture shows, and very often bring their children with them, would not tolerate the exhibition of obscene or immoral pictures there. A place in which such pictures were exhibited would soon be without sufficient patrons to support it. At all events, the criminal law is ample to prevent the exhibition of such pictures.

"I have asked these people who are crying out against the moving picture shows to give me an instance of an obscene or immoral picture being shown in them, so that the exhibitor may be prosecuted, but they have been unable to do so. What they insist on is to have the pictures examined in advance, and allowed or prohibited."

TRINITY CHURCH HOLDS PAGEANT TOMORROW

The pageant, "The Builders of the City of God," will be given in Trinity Church, Newton Centre, Sunday evening, at 7:15, by about thirty members of the parish.

It is a part of the activity of the nation-wide campaign, and is a revival of the ancient method of teaching religious truth by the symbolic action of pageantry.

SAXONVIILLE MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

EVERY DAY—TO BOSTON AMERICAN READERS

Mrs. Ella Pike Brown

Grove St., Kennebunk, Maine

will be paid $150 for the "best last line" of

LIMERICK No. 20

The completed Limerick reads as follows:

Lodge says there are spirits in air
Who still for their earthly friends care;
With rap, tap and bell,
They tell us they're well,
A fuller knowledge some day we'll all share.

"My husband laughed at me for trying to complete a Limerick," said Mrs. Ella Pike Brown. "I have been sending in last lines right along, but when someone called me on the telephone to say one had been accepted I thought some friend was playing a joke on me. I can only say that I am too delighted for words, and that I thank the American very sincerely. I have taken pleasure in the work, even if I hadn't been awarded a prize, and I think the effort is really educational. It has helped me pass some of these long stormy evenings."

Mrs. Brown is the wife of F. W. Brown, a Boston & Maine freight clerk. A housekeeper since her marriage, she was formerly a teacher.

4 next "best last lines" of No. 20 Limerick were written by MRS. MARY F. LONG, 146½ State St., Springfield, Mass.

In the event of more than one person sending in the same "best last line," similar awards will be made.

2. No one is barred from participating except employes of the Boston American and their families, who are absolutely barred. No one may send in more than one "best last line" to each Limerick.

Stocks Strong in New York at the Opening

RAILS HIGHER, STEELS OFF

Low Priced Carriers Showed Largest Gains in Early Trading

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks closed below the highest for the morning, the market weakening in the last few minutes. Profit-taking caused prices to drop just before the finish. Gains by a number of rails were wiped out and some issues which had featured the early advance ended at their lowest for the day.

U. S. Steel sold at its lowest for the year to date before the close. The market was quiet. Foreign exchange was steady, quotations being: Demand sterling, $3.39; francs, 14.23, and lire, 18.40.

STOCKS MOVED UP AND DOWN.

Prices were higher at the opening, but aside from rails quickly reacted, the trading element as a class taking the bear side. After receding for a few minutes the market became steadier and a rally followed. The price movement was narrow whether up or down. The market in fact was indefinite in trend in early trading. Rails were the strongest class and steels the weakest. The motors seemed to have more support than oils. Equipments were irregular. Low priced carriers showed the largest gains, a number advancing a point or more. Traders were even more cautious than usual about week-end commitments. At the end of an hour the market was rather strong, gains overbalancing losses two to one.

THINK LIQUIDATION IS OVER.

In financial districts are many persons who think liquidation is over and that the recent recession of stocks was due to short selling more than to anything else. Calling of loans during the slump this week is said to have been limited. According to reports, securities seldom have been so largely owned outright as at present. In some quarters it is claimed that while deflation of commodities is moving very slowly the stock market has been overliquidated. Europeans have been unloading holdings of American stocks to an extent that the public is not aware of. More confidence is felt, it is stated, by bankers than by brokers, although money conditions are blamed in a large measure for the depression of security values. While trade and industries are handicapped by many things at present, and probably will have to labor under the same disadvantages for some time, there is no lack of faith in the future.

OIL LANDS OPENED WHEN GREATLY NEEDED

The oil land leasing bill which has become law after a ten-year contest will increase the supply of crude oil at a time when this country's production is below consumption and the deficit is being made up by importations from Mexico.

Jones & Baker say of the measure in their comment on the stock market: "It will open 1,131,300 acres of productive and proved oil lands in Wyoming and release for marketing about 25,000 barrels daily. This will be the signal for exploration and development on a scale never before approached in the West and I look for Wyoming to be the centre of oil interest in America," is the comment of a prominent oil man."

Gain in Unfilled Tonnage

It is believed that steel producers will report for February an increase in unfilled tonnage, although consumers have not been so eager to get orders accepted this month as previously. Mills have all the business they can handle under existing labor and fuel supply conditions and prices have a strong [illegible]. Independent producers will not quote some [illegible] rails lower than $57 a ton, while one has just sold a small tonnage at $60.

New Shipyard Concern

The [illegible] Ship Yard, Inc., which is capitalized at [illegible] and will have a Massachusetts charter, is to take over the business and plant of the old concern of the same name and will build, repair and equip ships, yachts and boats. The Chelsea property to be taken over was assessed for $111,450 in 1919, and the last statement of the old company shows assets, including good will, appraised at [illegible] and assumed mortgage and other indebtedness of [illegible].

Will Build a Big Mill

The Great Falls Manufacturing Co. will build at Somersworth, N. H., a mill 1850 feet long at a cost of $4,500,000. It will use oil for fuel and have electricity for power.

Cotton Market

New York, Feb. 28.—The cotton market opened steady and from 6 points higher to 8 points lower. Later losses were regained. New Orleans was a seller. Sentiment here appeared to be conservatively bearish. Bulls, however, were encouraged by favorable weekly statistics, improvement in securities and steadier foreign exchanges. Opening prices were: March, 37.70 bid; April, 36.00; May, 34.95; July, 32.22; October, 29.85; December, 29.26; January, 29.01.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Corn opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. Oats opened ⅛c to ¼c lower. Provisions opened steady to a shade lower. Opening prices were: Corn—May, 1.35 to 1.35½; July, 1.29⅝ to 1.29¾. Oats—May, 79¼ to 79½; July, 72. Lard—May, 20.72 to 20.75.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, Feb. 28.—The sub-treasury lost $29,943,000 to the banks on Friday.

TRADING QUIET IN BOSTON

Price Movement Irregular Both on the Exchange and the Curb

At the opening of the Boston exchange prices were irregular, and they remained so during the morning. Changes were mostly upward, however. Trading was narrow and quiet. The market was devoid of feature. Fluctuations averaged small.

Among issues to advance a point were New England Telephone and Swift & Co. Smaller advances were made by Boston & Maine, New Haven, West End, Carson Hill, Elder, Eastern Manufacturing, Orpheum, Davis-Daly, North Butte and Superior & Boston.

Gray & Davis opened with a point gain, but lost it all and more. American Agricultural Chemical receded two points in the first hour. Fairbanks declined one, but recovered. Fractional losses were shown by Copper Range, East Butte, Mayflower, U. S. Smelting, United Shoe and Waldorf.

CURB MARKET WAS DULL.

The Curb market had a dull start, most issues being inactive. There was no range of consequence for issues that fluctuated. At the opening Eureka was up 1-16 and Crystal 1 cent, while Arizona Tip Top was off 2 cents and Albany Divide 1-16. Unchanged issues included Black Hawk, Hecla Divide, Manhattan Union, Midway and Pilgrim.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES

There is expectation that when Orpheum Circuit directors meet next week that the stock will be put upon a dividend basis. This accounts for its present activity.

The Boston Federal Reserve Bank followed New York and Philadelphia in advancing the discount rate on certificates of indebtedness from 4¾ per cent. to 5 per cent.

It is reported that a well in Mexico recently taken over by the Richart Producing & Refining Co. has increased its flow to 40,000 barrels a day and that its production is steadily increasing.

EXPECT CHEAPER CALL FUNDS

By BROADAN WALL

New York, Feb. 28.—Another day of great irregularity in Wall Street ended with stocks not materially changed. The opening was strong with advances averaging 2 points in active stocks, and in the case of General Motors running up 10 points.

General Motors broke 13 points from the high price, Mexican Petroleum and Woolen more than 6, Republic and Crucible more than 5, and others in proportion to their speculative activity. In the afternoon a covering movement took place based on expectation that President Wilson would sign the railroad bill.

The market closed quiet and strong at an average of nearly 2 points above the low figures of the day.

Money went as high as 12 per cent. on call, but renewals were at 10 per cent.

Professional Wall Street is bearish—enthusiastically so—but conservative brokers resent the way the money market is handled. The banking idea of forcing liquidation and preventing profiteering in business seems to be to outprofiteer the profiteers. It is profitless for the banks.

For the advances and declines in yesterday's market no explanation is needed other than the technical condition of the market. Wall Street operators are all very bearish and they are taking advantage of the temporary rally expected to accompany the signing of the railroad bill by the President.

There is a large short interest outstanding, but it is a strong one, and cannot be frightened by anything that is liable to happen in the near future. It is possible that call funds may be a little cheaper for a week or two.

The Mexican Petroleum Company is drilling six wells, every one of them practically an offset well and certain to be a producer. It will be about six weeks before the series of announcements will begin, but by that time the insiders will have a good line of stocks.

GOOD BILLS AT THE MOVIE HOUSES

TREMONT TEMPLE

The end is in sight for the engagement of Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna," as but three weeks more remain of its stay in Tremont Temple. The photoplay version of the beloved stories by Eleanor H. Porter graces the screen as an offering of extraordinary merit.

SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA

Spurred on by the tremendous urge of popular demand, the management of the Scollay Square Olympia has secured the tremendous Northland spectacle, "Back to God's Country," which broke all records at Gordon's Olympia last week, to head next week's big program. A large percentage of the scenes of this production were taken farther North than ever before in motion picture history.

Five acts of vaudeville of a very high order of merit, Harry Rodgers at the organ, the Olympia News Weekly and a new comedy complete the bill.

MODERN AND BEACON

Ethel Clayton is the headliner at the Modern and Beacon next week in her latest release, "Young Mrs. Winthrop." On the same bill is Dorothy Gish in "Mary Ellen Comes to Town" and Larry Semon in a rollicking comedy, "The Grocery Clerk."

"Young Mrs. Winthrop," in which Ethel Clayton plays the title role, is adapted from the famous play of the same name by Bronson Howard, which had a run of one year on Broadway over a decade ago.

"Mary Ellen Comes to Town" presents Dorothy Gish in a comedy of a small town girl who goes to New York to make her own living and has varied adventures in the Metropolis. This rollicking farce gives Miss Gish an excellent opportunity to display those comedy methods for which she is noted.

"The Grocery Clerk" is a farce built to order for Larry Semon.

PARK THEATRE

The second and last week of "Huckleberry Finn," the photoplay version of Mark Twain's famous story, which is now being shown at the Park Theatre, begins on next Monday afternoon.

Produced in a manner befitting the great story, this photoplay tells the complete story of the adventures of Huck and his pal, Tom Sawyer, and in the telling discloses many beautiful scenes along the Mississippi. At no time does the action lag and the characters seem rather to live on the screen than just actors playing a part.

WALDORF THEATRE

Danny Lund and his Waldorf Musical Comedy Company will present two new changes of program next week at the Waldorf Theatre. For the first half of next week the bill will be "A Peaceful Day," and will take the entire strength of the organization, including the twelve principals and twenty-five pretty dancing girls who form the chorus. In conjunction with the musical comedy there will be shown a big five-part feature picture and a short comedy subject.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

A striking contrast between the high and low walks of life is drawn in the photoplay, "A Daughter of Two Worlds," from the novel of the same name by LeRoy Scott, which will be shown at Gordon's Olympia next week. Norma Talmadge, who is starred as Jennie Malone, plays the part of the beautiful daughter of Black Jerry Malone, keeper of a questionable dance hall in the slums.

BOSTON THEATRE

At the Boston Theatre next week will be seen for the first time Rex Beach's great story of the Klondike—"The Girl from Outside," done into a photo-play.

Gold Shipment Postponed

About $10,000,000 in gold coin which was to have been shipped from New York to South America this week has beed held up by delay in steamship departure. The gold will go on Tuesday next, it is now expected.

Opera Stars in Boston Next Week

The brief engagement of the Chicago Opera which begins next Monday night at the Boston Opera House brings to this city the greatest array of stars since Hammerstein's old Manhattan company of which this troupe is a descendant.

The sopranos are headed by Galli-Curci, Mary Garden and Rosa Raisa, the tenors include Bonci, John O'Sullivan, Edward Johnson, Forest Lamont, Dolci and Schipa; they are weak in contraltos, Claessens and Van Gordon doing all the work, but for baritones they offer Titta Ruffo, George Baklanoff and Dufranne. The conductors are Hasselmans, Charlier and Marinuzzi.

The repertory includes such old favorites as Gioconda with Raisa, Traviata with Galli-Curci, Aida with Raisa, Pagliacci with Ruffo, Louise, Garden and O'Sullivan, Rigoletto with Ruffo, Thais with Garden and O'Sullivan, Carmen with Garden and Johnson (O'Sullivan has cancelled this performance because of a conflicting concert date) and the Masked Ball with Bonci.

The novelties are "Aphrodite" with Garden and Johnson, L'Heure Espagnole; the three Puccini one-act operas Il Tabarro, Suor Angelica and Gianni Schicchi. L'Elisir d'Armore Pelleas and Melisande and Don Pasquale are revivals which are almost novelties.

Charles A. Ellis, who has handled the Boston management, reports an enormous sale, and the indications are that the house will be completely sold out for most of the performances.

Central Vermont Deficit

For the last 1919 quarter the Central Vermont Railroad reports a deficit of $306,040, compared with $546,697 for the corresponding 1918 period. The decrease is $240,657.

EFFICIENT SERVICE BY COSMOPOLITAN TRUST CO.

Conditions in Poland have been graphically described in a letter received by Mr. Foremen, of No. 121 Causeway street, Boston, who heard from his uncle in the little town of Olkanik, province of Wilna, for the first time since 1914. In this letter his uncle tells of the pitiful scarcity of even bread, which only the wealthy can enjoy; how patches for fixing old clothes are not even obtainable; that potatoes when they can be purchased cost $50 per peck, where the children wear shoes composed of straw and rags. His uncle stated that their greatest difficulty is that money sent by relatives in America never reaches them because of delays, or by reason of having gone astray; but he states there is a bank now in Warsaw which sends funds direct frof Boston to Warsaw, and is a branch of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company. It is located at Miodowa 17, and even in his little village they are blessing this bank for its good work.

The envelope is mailed with a stamp containing the picture of Paderewski, the first of its kind to reach Boston.

Gasoline Exports Decreased

Gasoline exports for 1919 amounted to 259,783,919 gallons, or 92,183,246 less than for the preceding year.

Samuel Goldwyn
Presents
Rex Beach's

"The Girl from Outside"

You're the finest girl in the world and I am a thief !!

And in the end he gave his life to save the man she loved, as lightly as once he would have taken the life of any man who crossed his path. Rex Beach is no cynic. He believes in the race. He knows there is a substratum of gold in the blackest heart. The Kid proves it. He is a thief—he is one of a gang of thieves—all of them redeemed from dishonor and shame by a young and innocent girl playing a lone hand in a land that knows only one type of woman!

A peach of a story!—a Beach of a story!—a story of love and honor rising from the mud of primitive passions and surging through reels of nip-and-tuck suspense, told by one of the greatest photo-dramatists of his time, and screened with the scenic fidelity and crystalline photography of Goldwyn!

DEFEAT INSURGENTS AT EDUCATORS' CONVENTION

Cleveland, Feb. 28.—The educators' convention here was threatened with a break at the closing session when charges of autocratic rule in the superintendents' department were hurled at the officers by insurgents.

The charges were made by Fred Hunter, superintendent of schools, Oakland, Cal., in a resolution which he introduced. He urged that the officers be chosen by the convention rather than by the nominating committee. However, the flare-up was futile, as the convention adopted the committee's report.
